Asian Defence Review 2012 Air Commodore Jasjit Singh, 2013-03-15 With the shift of global power from West to East we have entered the era of an Asia centred century The rise of China and India the recovery and resurgence of Russia on one side and Japan on the other and the nature of the international order are leading to enormous changes. These transformational changes in the military, economic and political dynamics of Asia are accelerating with the passage of time. Historically, changes in the international order and equations of power among nations have been almost inevitably accompanied by conflicts and wars. The challenge ahead of the international community in general and Asian countries in particular would be how to ensure that this is avoided and competition so necessary to shaping the future is managed below the levels of armed conflict. This is crucial for most countries like India so that their comprehensive national development can progress without adverse developments. In order to work toward such goals, it is necessary to look at security and military related issues as objectively as possible. This volume is a resource base for the professional and the general reader. It is the sixth in the series of the annual publication of the Centre for Air Power Studies under this title which aims to fill a critical information and knowledge gap in current strategic literature dealing with military strategy, defence politics and trends in military capabilities that impact countries in Asia. In particular, it covers some of the important areas that affect Asian countries with a focus on China, India and Pakistan to provide the requisite regional balance.

Drawing on real life case studies, teachings of the Church and Scripture, this book will show you how healing, recovery and restoration are possible for each of you personally and for your marriage. Transitional Justice in South Asia Tazreena Sajjad, 2013-08-21 Offering a comparative case study of transitional justice processes in Afghanistan and Nepal, this book critically evaluates the way the local is consulted in post conflict efforts toward peace and reconciliation. It argues that there is a tendency in transitional justice efforts to contain the discussion of the local within religious and cultural parameters, thus engaging only with a static local as interpreted by certain local stakeholders. Based on data collected through interviews and participant observation carried out in the civil societies of the respective countries, this book brings attention to a dynamic local where societal norms evolve and realities on the ground are shaped by shifting power dynamics, local hierarchies and inequalities between actors. It suggests that the local must be understood as an intersubjective concept, the meaning of which is not only an evolving and moving target but also dependent on who is consulted to interpret it to external actors. This timely book engages with the divergent range of civil society voices and offers ways to move forward by including their concerns in the efforts to help impoverished war-torn societies transition.
