Fiction in the Archives Natalie Zemon Davis, 1987 To receive a royal pardon in sixteenth century France for certain kinds of homicide unpremeditated unintended in self defense or otherwise excusable a supplicant had to tell the king a story These stories took the form of letters of remission documents narrated to royal notaries by admitted offenders who in effect stated their case for pardon to the king Thousands of such stories are found in French archives providing precious evidence of the narrative skills and interpretive schemes of peasants and artisans as well as the well born This book by one of the most acclaimed historians of our time is a pioneering effort to use the tools of literary analysis to interpret archival texts to show how people from different stations in life shaped the events of a crime into a story and to compare their stories with those told by Renaissance authors not intended to judge the truth or falsity of the pardon narratives but rather to refer to the techniques for crafting stories A number of fascinating crime stories often possessing Rabelaisian humor are told in the course of the book which consists of three long chapters These chapters explore the French law of homicide depictions of hot anger and self defense and the distinctive characteristics of women's stories of bloodshed The book is illustrated with seven contemporary woodcuts and a facsimile of a letter of remission with appendixes providing several other original documents This volume is based on the Harry Camp Memorial Lectures given at Stanford University in 1986 Fiction in the Archives Natalie Zemon Davis, 1987-01-01 Rogue Archives Abigail De Kosnik, 2021-12-14 An examination of how nonprofessional archivists especially media fans practice cultural preservation on the Internet and how digital cultural memory differs radically from print era archiving The task of archiving was once entrusted only to museums libraries and other institutions that acted as repositories of culture in material form But with the rise of digital networked media a multitude of self designated archivists fans pirates hackers have become practitioners of cultural preservation on the Internet These nonprofessional archivists have democratized cultural memory building freely accessible online archives of whatever content they consider suitable for digital preservation In Rogue Archives Abigail De Kosnik examines the practice of archiving in the transition from print to digital media looking in particular at Internet fan fiction archives De Kosnik explains that media users today regard all of mass culture as an archive from which they can redeploy content for their own creations Hence remix culture and fan fiction are core genres of digital cultural production De Kosnik explores among other things the anticanonical archiving styles of Internet preservationists the volunteer labor of online archiving how fan archives serve women and queer users as cultural resources archivists efforts to attract racially and sexually diverse content and how digital archives adhere to the logics of performance more than the logics of print She also considers the similarities and differences among free culture free software and fan communities and uses digital humanities tools to quantify and visualize the size user base and rate of growth of several online fan archives British Archives J.
