Inside Graduate Admissions Julie R. Posselt, 2016-01-11 Advanced degrees are necessary for careers that once required only a college education Yet little has been written about who gets into grad school and why Julie Posselt pulls back the curtain on this secret process revealing how faculty evaluate applicants in top ranked doctoral programs in the humanities social sciences and natural sciences Report of an Ad Hoc Task Force on Diversity in Admissions University of California, Berkeley. School of Law. Ad Hoc Task Force on Diversity in Admissions, Rachel F. Moran, Edward Tom, Jan Vetter, Robert H. Cole, 1997 Submitted by Professor Rachel Moran Director of Admissions Edward Tom Professor Jan Vetter Associate Dean Robert Cole chair Diversifying Graduate Schools and the Faculty Kathryn Masterson, 2019-02-28 While colleges and universities have hired more African American Hispanic and Asian American faculty members than in the past percentages of historically underrepresented groups among full time faculty have not changed much over the last 20 years even as diversifying the academy has become a top goal across higher education Many of the graduate programs that are educating the future professoriate are not much more diverse than the faculties are And while colleges have made big strides in the diversity of undergraduate student bodies the professoriate has lagged Amid broad demographic change in our country and at a time when racial gender and social inequities are front and center colleges increasingly cannot afford to ignore diversity This in depth report includes insight from experts on the cutting edge of diversity work It offers ideas and models for institutions that are looking at faculty representation and know they need to An essential guide to graduate admissions:. Council of Graduate Schools in the United States, 1992 do more Diversity Bargain Natasha Warikoo, 2016-11-15 We ve heard plenty from politicians and experts on affirmative action and higher education about how universities should intervene if at all to ensure a diverse but deserving student population But what about those for whom these issues matter the most In this book Natasha K Warikoo deeply explores how students themselves think about merit and race at a uniquely pivotal moment after they have just won the most competitive game of their lives and gained admittance to one of the world's top universities What Warikoo uncovers talking with both white students and students of color at Harvard Brown and Oxford is absolutely illuminating and some of it is positively shocking As she shows many elite white students understand the value of diversity abstractly but they ignore the real problems that racial inequality causes and that diversity programs are meant to solve They stand in fear of being labeled a racist but they are quick to call foul should a diversity program appear at all to hamper their own chances for advancement The most troubling result of this ambivalence is what she calls the diversity bargain in which white students reluctantly agree with affirmative action as long as it benefits them by providing a diverse learning environment racial diversity in this way is a commodity a selling point on a brochure And as Warikoo shows universities play a big part in creating these situations The way they talk about race on campus and the kinds of diversity programs they offer have a huge impact on student attitudes shaping them either toward ambivalence or in better cases toward more productive and considerate understandings of racial difference Ultimately this book demonstrates just how slippery the notions of race merit and privilege can be In doing so it asks important questions not just about college admissions but what the elite students who have succeeded at it who will be the world s future leaders will do with the social inequalities of the wider world An Essential Guide to Graduate Admissions, 1992 An Essential Guide to Graduate Admissions Carol B.
