of a two year Spencer funded study in creating an inclusive i.e. multicultural and intergenerational instructional design model for online learning. The book is expected to provide the readers a field guide of teaching approach comprising pedagogical, technical, relational and other suggestions for teaching for inclusive e-learning with a foundation in the research on how students from different cultures and generation groups learn online. This two year multi-course site study as a first effort to examine online college teaching and learning effective across culture and age contributed a list of important findings on the following questions: To what extent are online learning and interaction experiences and performances consistent across varied ethnic, cultural and age groups and in what ways do they vary? What online instructional contexts do students and faculty especially non-traditional and minority students identify as supporting learning and student success? What are the relationships between online instructional contexts, online learning performance and learning success of students with diverse ethnicity, culture and age background? By consolidating the findings for the aforementioned research questions, the researchers of this study have developed a data-driven online instructional design model that can work as a field guide on cross-cultural and intergenerational teaching and learning for online education practitioners.

Handbook of Adult and Continuing Education Arthur L. Wilson, Elisabeth Hayes, 2009-04-27. Sponsored by the American Association of Adult Continuing Education. This monumental work is a testimony to the science of adult education and the skills of Wilson and Hayes. It is a veritable feast for nourishing our understanding of the current field of adult education. The editors and their well-chosen colleagues consistently question how we know and upon what grounds we act. They invite us to consider not only how we can design effective adult education but also why we practice in a particular socio-economic context. Jane Vella, author of Taking Learning to Task and Learning to Listen: Learning to Teach. This new handbook captures the exciting intellectual and professional development of our field in the last decade. It is an indispensable resource for faculty, students and professionals.

Jack Mezirow, emeritus professor, Adult and Continuing Education Teachers College, Columbia University. For nearly seventy years, the handbooks of adult and continuing education have been definitive references on the best practices, programs and institutions in the field. In this new edition, over sixty leading authorities share their diverse perspectives in a single volume exploring a wealth of topics including learning from experience, adult learning for self-development, race and culture in adult learning, technology and distance learning, learning in the workplace, adult education for community action and development and much more. Much more than a catalogue of theory and historical facts, this handbook strongly reflects the values of adult educators and instructors who are dedicated to promoting social and educational opportunity for learners and to sustaining fair and ethical practices.
