his case, the word "faster" can be interpreted "Faster" as a real valued limit. We can think about this as $g(n) = 2n$. These can be thought as sequences of real numbers not one sequence dominates the other, and what is the limit of their ratios $$\lim_{n \rightarrow \infty} \frac{f(n)}{g(n)} = \frac{1}{2}$$

Since $\frac{1}{2} < 1$ we have that indeed g is the faster sequence.

"Faster" as a computational process. This is similar to the above case, we and calculate the limit of their ratios. However this time we say that if the (but finite!) constant, then they are more or less the same speed. In this case have the same "speed".

"Faster" as a set theoretic process (cardinality). This is not similar to the two this case we only measure the cardinality of the output of the sequence. We not the cardinality, which is the rawest notion of "size" for sets, of the two $\{2n \mid n \in \mathbb{N}\}$ are the same, despite one being a proper subset of the other.

The answer here is that the cardinality is the same, because there is a bijection sets, indeed $g(n) = 2n$ is this bijection. So the two methods of counting end same "speed" again.

There are definitely more ways to define which sets go "faster" to infinity. And they definitely change from one context to another. The point is that there are different ways to ensure how fast a particular set of integers, or a sequence if you will, thins out at infinity. It is useful to consider different ways in different contexts.

Let us want to explain to a child about the importance of context in which a term is used. What it is easier to carry a 5 kg of iron cast into one block, or a balloon which is huge (0.85m³ in volume). While the iron is definitely heavier, the balloon is much larger and more difficult to handle.
Carrying it by hand makes the iron easier to handle than the balloon is. We have to put less effort to carry the iron than the balloon.
