Curating The Future Museums Communities And Climate Change Routledge Environmental Humanities:

Curating the Future Jennifer Newell, Libby Robin, Kirsten Wehner, 2016-08-12 Curating the Future Museums Communities and Climate Change explores the way museums tackle the broad global issue of climate change. It explores the power of real objects and collections to stir hearts and minds to engage communities affected by change. Museums work through exhibitions, events, and specific collection projects to reach different communities in different ways. The book emphasises the moral responsibilities of museums to address climate change not just by communicating science but also by enabling people already affected by changes to find their own ways of living with global warming. There are museums of natural history, of art, and of social history. The focus of this book is the museum communities like those in the Pacific who have to find new ways to express their culture in a new place. The book considers how collections in museums might help future generations stay in touch with their culture even where they have left their place. It asks what should the people of the present be collecting for museums in a climate changed future. The book is rich with practical museum experience and detailed projects as well as critical and philosophical analyses about where a museum can intervene to speak to this great conundrum of our times. Curating the Future is essential reading for all those working in museums and grappling with how to talk about climate change. It also has academic applications in courses of museology and museum studies, cultural studies, heritage studies, digital humanities, design, anthropology, and environmental humanities.

Humanities for the Environment

Joni Adamson, Michael Davis, 2016-11-10 Humanities for the Environment or HfE is an ambitious project that from 2013-2015 was funded by a generous grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation. The project networked universities and researchers internationally through a system of observatories. This book collects the work of contributors networked through the North American, Asia Pacific, and Australia Pacific observatories. Humanities for the Environment showcases how humanists are working to integrate knowledges from diverse cultures and ontologies and pilot new constellations of practice that are moving beyond traditional contemplative or reflective outcomes. The book is the essay towards solutions to the greatest social and environmental challenges of our time. With the still controversial concept of the Anthropocene as a starting point for a widening conversation, contributors range across geographies, ecosystems, climates, and weather regimes, moving from icy melting Arctic landscapes to the bleaching Australian Great Barrier Reef and from an urban pedagogical laboratory in Phoenix, Arizona to Vatican City in Rome. Chapters explore the ways in which humanists in collaboration with communities and disciplines across academia are responding to warming oceans, disappearing islands, collapsing fisheries, evaporating reservoirs of water, exploding bushfires, and spreading radioactive contamination. This interdisciplinary work will be of great interest to scholars in the humanities, social sciences, and sciences interested in interdisciplinary questions of environment and culture.

Addressing the Challenges in Communicating Climate Change Across Various Audiences

Walter Leal Filho, Bettina Lackner, Henry McGhie, 2018-10-02 This book offers a concrete contribution towards a better understanding of climate change communication It ultimately helps to catalyse the sort of cross sectoral action needed to address the phenomenon of climate change and its many consequences There is a perceived need to foster a better understanding of what climate change is and to identify approaches processes methods and tools which may help to better communicate it There is also a need for successful examples showing how communication can take place across society and stakeholders Addressing the challenges in communicating to various audiences and providing a platform for reflections it showcases lessons learnt from research field projects and best practices in various settings in various different countries The acquired knowledge can be adapted and applied to other situations

The Arts and Humanities on Environmental and Climate Change Sarah Sutton,2022-10-18 The Arts and Humanities on Environmental and Climate Change examines how cultural institutions and their collections can support a goal shared with the scientific community creating a climate literate public that engages with environmental issues and climate change in an informed way When researchers curators and educators use the arts and humanities to frame discussions about environmental and climate change they can engage a far wider public in learning conversation and action than science can alone Demonstrating that archival and object based resources can act as vital evidence for change Sutton shows how the historical record paired with contemporary reality can create more personal connections to what many consider a remote experience the changing climate Providing valuable examples of museum collections used in discussions of environmental and climate change the book shares how historic images and landscape paintings demonstrate change over time and how documentary evidence in the form of archaeological reports ships logs Henry David Thoreau s journals and local reports of pond hockey conditions are being used to render climate data more accessible Images personal records and professional documents have critical roles as boundary objects and proxy data These climate resources Sutton argues are valuable because they make climate change personal and attract a public less interested in a scientific approach This approach is underused by museums and their research allies for public engagement and for building institutional relevancy The Arts and Humanities on Environmental and Climate Change will be most interesting to readers looking for ways to broaden engagement with environmental and climate issues The ideas shared here should also act as inspiration for a broad spectrum of practitioners particularly those writing designing and curating public engagement materials in museums for wider research and for the media

Museums and the Climate Crisis Nick Merriman, 2023-12-22 Museums and the Climate Crisis shows how museums can respond to the interrelated global climate biodiversity and pollution crises They have a unique role because they take a long term perspective and their scholarship and independence mean that they remain trusted by the public Providing insights and international case studies from a range of museum and gallery professionals academics and consultants this book explores how museums can use this unique perspective to engage the public as active citizens and how they are exemplars of good practice in areas such as emissions reduction and encouraging biodiversity It shows how museums can combat climate exhaustion by drawing on understandings about positive motivation and how to develop exhibitions events and activities that motivate visitors to take action Taking a broad approach beyond purely climate issues the contributions touch on the use of renewables environmental controls and standards travel including virtual couriering waste management including recycling plastic reduction and composting reducing pollution and increasing biodiversity within museums Museums and the Climate Crisis will be important reading to those studying in the fields of Museum Studies Heritage Studies and Conservation Taking a practical approach it will also be beneficial to museum gallery and heritage professionals who are grappling with the challenges of the climate crisis

Recording Kastom Jude Philp, Anita Herle, 2020-12-01 Recording Kastom brings readers into the heart of colonial Torres Strait and New Guinea through the personal journals of Cambridge zoologist and anthropologist Alfred Haddon who visited the region in 1888 and 1898 Haddon s published reports of these trips were hugely influential on the nascent discipline of anthropology but his private journals and sketches have never been published in full The journals record in vivid detail Haddon s observations and relationships They highlight his preoccupation with documentation and the central role played by the Islanders who worked with him to record kastom This collaboration resulted in an enormous body of materials that remain of vital interest to Torres Strait Islanders and the communities where he worked Haddon s Journals provide unique and intimate insights into the colonial history of the region will be an important resource for scholars in history anthropology linguistics and musicology This comprehensively annotated edition assembles a rich array of photographs drawings artefacts film and sound recordings An introductory essay provides historical and cultural context The preface and epilogue provide Islander perspectives on the historical context of Haddon s work and its significance for the future

Times of History, Times of Nature Anders Ekström, Staffan Bergwik, 2022-02-11 As climate change becomes an increasingly important part of public discourse the relationship between time in nature and history is changing Nature can no longer be considered a slow and immobile background to human history and the future can no longer be viewed as open and detached from the past Times of History Times of Nature engages with this historical shift in temporal sensibilities through a combination of detailed case studies and synthesizing efforts Focusing on the history of knowledge media theory and environmental humanities this volume explores the rich and nuanced notions of time and temporality that have emerged in response to climate change

Reimagining Museums for Climate Action Rodney Harrison, Colin Sterling, 2021-11-01 This book is not a typical academic edited volume Nor does it subscribe to the usual dictates of an exhibition catalogue It does not seek to provide a comprehensive overview of work on climate change and museums or claim to have discovered One Quick Trick to Solve the Climate Emergency Instead the book reflects the main characteristics of the Reimagining Museums for Climate Action project it is collaborative distributed conversational subversive nomadic and at times playful The arguments it puts forward emerge through dialogue and speculation just as much as they respond to and build on empirical research In this sense the book is perhaps best seen as a partial and in many ways still evolving artefact of the Reimagining Museums project It can be read from cover to cover or its varied contents can be traversed in a less rigid fashion It is one output among many and its main aim is to prompt further transdisciplinary alliances rather than set out a particular position or manifesto To this end the book invites peripatetic readings and strange deviations It is anchored by eight concepts that reflect the diversity and creativity of museums but it is also motivated by a desire to re situate this field within a broader set of debates on the roots of social and environmental injustice and the role of museums in these histories
