Gerontology An Interdisciplinary Perspective:

Gerontology John C. Cavanaugh, Susan Krauss Whitbourne, 1999 Gerontology An Interdisciplinary Perspective provides a thorough and broad based survey of the current knowledge base and is the first gerontology text aimed at the graduate level. The authors of each chapter are leading experts in their respective fields. Each chapter reflects current trends and emerging issues as well as a firm grounding in previous research and theory and includes review questions and a list of additional references. The interdisciplinary nature of the text clearly reflects the state of the field and emphasizes the need to take a broader view of age related phenomena. Ideal for master's level students in gerontology, psychology, sociology, nursing, geriatrics and related disciplines. Gerontology An Interdisciplinary Perspective can also serve as a core text in appropriate advanced undergraduate courses.

Gerontology John C. Cavanaugh, Susan Krauss Whitbourne, 1999 As the baby boom generation ages, the number of older adults continues to increase at a dramatic rate. This trend has created a need for well educated professionals in the rapidly expanding fields of psychology, social work, health care, education, public administration and policy and human services. Because of this, the growth of courses in gerontology has created a demand for appropriate textbooks, particularly at the graduate level. Gerontology An Interdisciplinary Perspective provides a thorough and broad based survey of the current knowledge base and is the first gerontology text aimed at the graduate level. The authors of each chapter are leading experts in their respective fields. Topics covered include theory, methodology, physiological processes, health, culture and ethnicity, dying and bereavement, basic cognitive processes, intellectual abilities, personality assessment, mental health and intervention, caregiving, work, retirement and leisure, competency and nursing homes and public policy issues. Each chapter reflects current trends and emerging issues as well as a firm grounding in previous research and theory and includes review questions and a list of additional references. The interdisciplinary nature of the text clearly reflects the state of the field and emphasizes the need to take a broader view of age related phenomena. Ideal for master's level students in gerontology, psychology, sociology, nursing, geriatrics and related disciplines. Gerontology An Interdisciplinary Perspective can also serve as a core text in appropriate advanced undergraduate courses.

The Clinical Care of the Aged Person David G. Satin, Barbara A. Blakeney, 1994 As the population of aged people increases throughout the world the need for comprehensive integrated geriatric care is rapidly becoming a high priority Developed from an education program in clinical geriatrics offered through the Division on Aging of the Harvard Medical School this authoritative text provides broad interdisciplinary coverage of geriatric health care The book incorporates the theory and skill needed for many disciplines to work together effectively It integrates the various topics covered by way of section introductions cross references within chapters a case study and case conference and an introductory chapter of discussions among a panel of aged people With contributions from a wide range of experts this book teaches an interdisciplinary perspective on the aged and their health care and examines the working relationships among the many professionals providing care for the aged

The International Handbook on Aging Erdman P. Palmore, Frank Whittington, Suzanne Kunkel, 2009-10-27 The United Nations World Assembly on Aging has made advancing health and well being into old age a worldwide call for action And this text at hand shows us what researchers worldwide are doing to answer that call Here three of America s most esteemed experts on aging lead a global team of contributors each an expert in his or her country to show us what the top challenges of each nation are and what top research is being done there to meet those While we cannot predict with absolute certainty all of the issues that will arise over the next 20 years we can anticipate some and we must start now to prepare for these challenges an expert from the U S Department of Health and Human Services warned at a recent UN World Assembly on Aging Needed response to the global population shift is not just the responsibility of governments but will be a product of wise long term decisions made by individuals and societies she explained In most nations globally populations are graying and the number of people aged 65 and older is vastly increasing creating a larger segment of senior citizens than the world has ever before seen Across human history the elderly accounted for no more than 3 percent of the world population By the year 2030 the elderly are expected to make up about 25 percent of the world population And while longevity is of course seen as a great success longer lifespan for such masses also creates dilemmas For example the incidence of dementia has already increased significantly with an 11 fold increase in people aged 65 and older in the US since the turn of the century and a similar increase in aged people in Scotland has researchers there scrambling to find treatments for what they expect will be a 75 percent increase in dementia over the next 25 years Chronic diseases that come with aging are already taxing health care systems in the US and around the world to Japan with most experts aware their current health systems would be overrun and lack enough staff and facilities to handle the needs of an elderly population multiplying largely in the coming two decades Increases in psychological issues such as dealing with the depression often striking aged people are impending too as are social issues such as how families and public policies will deal with the changing shape of the family

International Handbook of Positive Aging Rachael E. Docking, Jennifer Stock, 2017-07-14 As our global demographic shifts towards an increasingly aging population we have an opportunity to transform how we experience and think about getting older and embrace the diversity and contribution that this population can bring to society The International Handbook of Positive Aging showcases the latest research and theory into aging examining the various challenges faced by older adults and the ways in which we can bring a much needed positive focus towards dealing with these The handbook brings together disparate research from medical academic economic and social community fields with contributions from NHS partners service users universities across the United Kingdom and collaborations with international research leaders in the field of aging Divided into sections the first part of the book focuses on introducing the concept of positive aging before going on to cover the body over the life course well being and care delivery All contributors recognise the fact that we are living longer which is providing us with a tremendous opportunity to enjoy and flourish in healthy and fulfilling later lives and this focus on the importance of patient empowerment is integral to the book This is a valuable reference source for those working in developmental psychology clinical psychology mental health health sciences medicine neuropsychological rehabilitation sociology anthropology social policy and social work It will help encourage researchers professionals and policymakers to make the most of opportunities and innovations to promote a person's sense of independence dignity well being good health and participation in society as they get older
