Introduction: Arguing about the Environment – What Difference Does Culture Make?

In recent years environmental debate has moved from the margins of public and political life to occupy a key position in discussions on the political, social and economic prospects of the human world. Unprecedented media coverage on central environmental problems such as climate change and biodiversity loss has accelerated a dramatic shift in how we view our physical environment and our role within it. This book deals with consequences of an important aspect of this shift that may look unsurprising but has yet to receive sufficient attention from social scientists, politicians, environmental policy-makers and others who contribute to public life: environmental arguing takes place between people who differ from each other in many ways. These people, or groups or institutions or nations, often have radically divergent assumptions and convictions – sometimes quite unconnected with the environment as such; thus debates about the environment present themselves as instances of intercultural dialogue. Here we try to explore some factors which can make environmental arguments seem plausible, or otherwise, to their adherents, and which lead them to react to the arguments of others as they do. Many of the effective, on-the-ground meanings of debates about the environment are generated and affected by clashes between different ways of living – ‘cultures’. In this collection, we examine instances of environmental arguing drawn from three contrasting societies – Ireland, Germany and China – and made by people with dissimilar points of view within those societies. We highlight some of the ways in which interculturality can shape arguments, influencing them in terms of ‘background’ factors which may, in the event, make all the difference.

This suggests that culture matters in ways which rarely find expression in everyday discourse or in the literature. The different back-

Environmental Argument and Cultural Difference Ricca Edmondson, Henrike Rau, 2008 This text offers sociological evidence from three contrasting societies Ireland Germany and China to explore how diversity of cultural context affects deliberation about the physical world It disinters taken for granted practices feelings and social relationships which affect environmental arguments Environmental Argument and Cultural Difference ,2008 Environmental argument is about far more than meets the eye How people mis understand each other during environmental debates is affected by conflicts between values and ways of life which may not be directly connected with the environment at all This book offers sociological evidence from three contrasting societies Ireland Germany and China to explore how diversity of cultural context affects deliberation about the physical world What can we discover by examining environmental debates through the lens of interculturality When people disagree about flood management building motorways or extracting gas what difference does it make if they have diverse experiences of neighbourly relations how to use time or how to imagine a good life What is going on at intersections between cultures to influence the trajectories of environmental debates The book disinters taken for granted practices feelings and social relationships which affect environmental arguments in scientific and artistic debate as well as in politics and policy making Importantly the book makes visible the effects of cultural difference on people s approaches to arguing itself If public arguing is shaped by specific habits of feeling or imagination how does that impact on theories of democracy Do we need new kinds of arguing to cope with environmental crises What elements of arguing are decisive in the ways people come to see environmental decisions as wise choices Environmental Sociology Matthias Groß, Harald Heinrichs, 2010-06-17 Despite being a relatively young sub discipline European environmental sociology has changed considerably in the last decades towards more interdisciplinary collaborations and problem solving Current trends such as global environmental modernization and processes of economic political and socio cultural globalization fuelled by developments of transport environmental flows scientific uncertainty and information technologies have fostered new conceptual approaches that move beyond classical sociological mind sets toward broader attempts to connect to other disciplines Challenging Consumption Anna R. Davies, Frances Fahy, Henrike Rau, 2014-05-16 Sustainable consumption is a central research topic in academic discourses of sustainable development and global environmental change Informed by a number of disciplinary perspectives this book is structured around four key themes in sustainable consumption research Living Moving Dwelling and Futures The collection successfully balances theoretical insights with grounded case studies on mobility heating washing and eating practices and concludes by exploring future sustainable consumption research pathways and policy recommendations Theoretical frameworks are advanced throughout the volume especially in relation to social practice theory theories of behavioural change and innovative visioning and backcasting methodologies This groundbreaking book draws on some conceptual approaches which move beyond the responsibility of the individual consumer to take into account wider social economic and political structures and processes in order to highlight both possibilities for and challenges to sustainable consumption This approach enables students and policy makers alike to easily recognise the applicability of social science theories      Community Carsharing and the Social-Ecological Mobility Transition Luca Nitschke, 2022-07-14 This book investigates how practices of community carsharing are influencing everyday mobility It argues that hegemonic practices of automobility are reconfigured through practices of community carsharing thereby challenging capitalist mobilities in the realm of everyday life Through a detailed empirical study of practices of community carsharing and its practitioners in the rural regions around Munich Germany this book reveals how the practice contributes to the emergence of alternative automobile practices meanings identities and subjectivities It also explores the embedding of automobility into its ecological context the connection of function and community in practices of community carsharing and the changing of ownership relations through a process of commoning mobility This reconfiguration of everyday practices of automobility takes place through processes of everyday resistance re embedding and commoning and ultimately results in the emergence of an alternative mobility culture thereby facilitating the dissemination of an alternative common sense of community carsharing This book on community carsharing provides a valuable insight into carsharing in rural settings and exemplifies how carsharing specifically and sharing mobilities in general can contribute to a social ecological mobility transition The work will be of particular interest to scholars and practitioners working in mobility studies and mobilities

Methods of Sustainability Research in the Social Sciences Frances Fahy, Henrike Rau, 2013-01-21 Sustainability is a key concept used by social scientists interested in interactions between human society and the environment This text offers a systematic and critical review of established and emerging methodological approaches as well as tools for the integrated investigation of sustainability questions Recognising the significance of scale for sustainability efforts and measurement its scope ranges from the local to the global Divided into five sections Part I examines the key challenges inherent to social scientific sustainability research focusing in particular on methodological questions that arise from recent efforts towards greater disciplinary integration Part II discusses methodologies aimed at the investigation of attitudes and behaviour observable at the local level from families and households to individual organisations within communities Part III focuses on comparative sustainability research across different levels of socio political organisation from cities and regions to nation states Part IV covers recent developments which recognise the significance of time for sustainability research and which offer innovative methodological approaches that focus on life events and long term outcome Part V offers a critical assessment of current and future trends in social scientific sustainability research Bringing together contributions from international social scientists this is the resource for academics and practitioners interested in sustainability research It will be a core teaching text for undergraduate and postgraduate courses in sustainability and sustainable development geography environmental sociology and the environmental sciences      Climate Cultures in Europe and North America Thorsten

Heimann, Jamie Sommer, Margarethe Kusenbach, Gabriela Christmann, 2022-07-28 Bringing together scholarly research by climate experts working in different locations and social science disciplines this book offers insights into how climate change is socially and culturally constructed Whereas existing studies of climate cultural differences are predominantly rooted in a static understanding of culture cultural globalization theory suggests that new formations emerge dynamically at different social and spatial scales This volume gathers analyses of climate cultural formations within various spaces and regions in the United States and the European Union It focuses particularly on the emergence of new social movements and coalitions devoted to fighting climate change on both sides of the Atlantic Overall Climate Cultures in Europe and North America provides empirical and theoretical findings that contribute to current debates on globalization conflict and governance as well as cultural and social change This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of climate change

Practical Reasoning Ricca Edmondson, Karlheinz Hülser, 2012-09-20 The capacity for reasonable argument about practical and political matters is important to our daily lives Yet what does arguing really involve Often our very concept of what it is to argue seems systematically distorted Practical political arguing is too often stylized as hyper cognitive ending by treating people as objects rather than other selves in ways that are fundamentally unreasonable This book examines what follows from seeing people as deliberating and acting in ways that intertwine a variety of emotional and evaluative processes and effects of virtue or character From this point of view practical arguing involves not just cognition emotion and virtue but also practices including imaginative practices Politics of Practical Reasoning Integrating Action Discourse and Argument uses these ideas to interrogate ways in which reasoning is bound up with the interrelated lives that human beings lead in their everyday public and political worlds We build here on efforts to re concretize practical reasoning in modern traditions linked to phenomenology and Wittgensteinian thought also referring back to Aristotle and the Stoics in classical times Medieval theologians and philosophers such as Aquinas confront the same issue as do Enlightenment thinkers such as Smith and Kant Using the history of philosophical thought as one of our major sources the contributors sympathize with the link underscored between interpretation tradition and reasoning by Gadamer the stress placed on communicative and emancipatory action by Habermas and MacIntyre's notion of praxis as highlighting deliberation within communities All these approaches respond to practical reasoning as practical Building on these points of view the volume both explores what practical reasoning itself means and applies it to particular questions what it means to respond to arguments about meaningful work or disability or how to debate institutional ethics or art None of these debates is susceptible to exclusively cognitive or technical solutions this does not mean abandoning them to unreason Practical and political reasoning is examined here from an appropriately broad spectrum of approaches founded in a concern for what human reasoning can justifiably be expected to involve and what justifying it can reasonably be expected to achieve

Ageing, Insight and Wisdom Ricca Edmondson, 2015-06-29

This book focuses on older people as makers of meaning and insight highlighting the evolving values priorities and ways of communicating that make later life fascinating It explores what creating meaning in later life really implies for older people themselves for how to conceptualise older people and for relationships between generations The book offers a language for discussing major types of lifecourse meaning not least those concerning ethical and temporal aspects of the ways people interpret their lifecourses the ways older people form part of social and symbolic landscapes and the types of wisdom they can offer It will appeal to students of gerontology sociological methodology humanistic sociology philosophy psychology and health promotion and medicine

Innovation For Sustainability Mammo Muchie, Angathevar Baskaran, 2013-12-29 The innovation system theory has to deal with climate change as it generates the intellectual tools to promote development A unified innovation system theory that integrates the eradication of threats to nature with the promotion of development is critically important to advance an original pedigree and trajectory of epistemology Africa must learn and appreciate the costs to itself from the way Europe industrialised It can neither follow nor imitate the European pattern of industrialisation It has to include in its own development agenda both the meeting of social needs and choosing a path of development that would not bring ecological harm in the process The African innovation system has to evolve in a nature protecting rather than hurting system in addition social needs must be met rather than exacerbating the social inequalities path of development

Transforming the Fisheries Patrick Bresnihan, 2018-04-01 There is now widespread agreement that fish stocks are severely depleted and fishing activity must be limited At the same time the promise of the green economy appears to offer profitable new opportunities for a sustainable seafood industry What do these seemingly contradictory ideas of natural limits and green growth mean in practice What do they tell us more generally about current transformations to the way nature is valued and managed And who suffers and who benefits from these new ecological arrangements Far from abstract policy considerations Patrick Bresnihan shows how new approaches to environmental management are transforming the fisheries and generating novel forms of exclusion in the process Transforming the Fisheries examines how scientific economic and regulatory responses to the problem of overfishing have changed over the past twenty years Based on fieldwork in a commercial fishing port in Ireland Bresnihan weaves together ethnography science history and social theory to explore the changing relationships between knowledge nature and the market For Bresnihan many of the key concepts that govern contemporary environmental thinking such as scarcity sustainability the commons and enclosure should be reconsidered in light of the collapse of global fish stocks and the different ways this problem is being addressed Only by considering these concepts anew can we begin to reinvent the ecological commons we need for the future The Scientific Study of Personal Wisdom Michel Ferrari, Nic M. Weststrate, 2014-01-08 The rich and diverse contributions to this volume span a wide variety of disciplines from psychology and philosophy to neuroscience by some of the most influential scholars in the emerging science of personal wisdom As such it is a collection of essential readings and the first publication to integrate both the spiritual and pragmatic dimensions of personal wisdom The content of the book goes beyond speculative theory to present a wealth of scientific research currently under way in this expanding field It also describes numerous promising methods now being deployed in the quest for scientific knowledge of the elusive yet critical phenomenon of personal wisdom The book is an excellent introduction to the field for novice researchers as well as a stimulating and enlightening resource for established experts Its broad appeal makes it a vital addition to the libraries of academics and practitioners in many disciplines from developmental psychology to gerontology and from philosophy to contemplative religious traditions such as Buddhism

Competing Climate Cultures in Germany Sarah Kessler, 2024-03-04 Despite frequent protests and abounding discussions about the subject climate action measures to counter human made climate change have so far remained largely ineffective By identifying profound climate cultural differences Sarah Kessler offers an explanation to this issue and shows that conventional assumptions of an implicit consensus on the need to prioritise climate action should be reconsidered She uncovers climate cultural variations in implicit and explicit denial of climate change and thus challenges existing approaches that treat the German public as a unified entity waiting to be activated by the right kind of rationally convincing information

Conflict Cultural Heritage and Peace offers a series of conceptual and applied frameworks to help understand the role cultural heritage plays within conflict and the potential it has to contribute to positive peacebuilding and sustainable development in post conflict societies. Designed as a resource guide, this general volume introduces the multiple roles cultural heritage plays through the conflict cycle from its onset, subsequent escalation, and through to resolution and recovery. In its broadest sense, it questions what role cultural heritage plays within conflict, how cultural heritage is used in the construction and justification of conflict narratives, how are these narratives framed and often manipulated to support particular perspectives, and how we can develop better understandings of cultural heritage and work towards the better protection of cultural heritage resources during conflict. It moves beyond the protection paradigm and recognises that cultural heritage can contribute to building peace and reconciliation in post conflict environments. The study offers a conceptual and operational framework to understand the roles cultural heritage plays within conflict cycles, how it can be targeted during war, and the potential cultural heritage has in positive peacebuilding across the conflict lifecycle. Conflict Cultural Heritage and Peace offers an invaluable introduction to cultural heritage at all stages in conflict scenarios, which will benefit students, researchers, and practitioners in the field of heritage, environment, peace, and conflict studies.
