Judge and as Merciful in Early Judaism Barry D. Smith, 2005 In recent years the scholarly consensus has emerged that early Judaism should no longer be classified as a religion of legalistic works on righteousness but rather defined primarily by God s covenant with Israel In this work it is argued instead that there is actually a tension in early Judaism between God as righteous judge and as merciful As E Sj berg maintained in his Gott und S nder im pal stinischen Judentum in the sources used for a reconstruction of early Judaism there are two mutually exclusive ways in which God is said to relate to human beings First God as righteous judge deals with human beings as they deserve They are assumed to be morally free and responsible and God judges and recompenses them in history and eschatologically Not only are the wicked punished for their sins but the righteous are also rewarded for their obedience And second God as merciful does not deal with human beings as they deserve Rather he removes the guilt resulting from disobedience to the Law sometimes on the simple condition of repentance This means that a person can escape the consequences of disobedience The understanding of God in the sources vacillates between God as righteous judge and God as merciful without coming down definitively on one side to the exclusion of the other

Textual Criticism and the Ontology of Literature in Early Judaism James Nati, 2021-11-01 The Dead Sea Scrolls have demonstrated the fluidity of biblical and early Jewish texts in antiquity How did early Jewish scribes understand the nature of their pluriform literature How should modern textual critics deal with these fluid texts Centered on the Serekh ha Ya ad or Community Rule from Qumran as a test case this volume tracks the development of its textual tradition in multiple trajectories and suggests that it was not understood as a single unified composition even in antiquity Attending to material textual and literary factors the book argues that ancient claims for textual identity ought to be given priority in discussions among textual critics about the ontology of biblical books
