The flash mob movements in London, UK Thomas Töppel,2014-04-11 Inhaltsangabe Abstract Flash mobs are an urban movement in which it seems that random people meet at a random place and do something out of the ordinary to amuse people as well as to make them think What just happened They begin as a communication in cyberspace and end as participation in real life and with the growing popularity of flash mobs corporations are starting to use this urban movement for commercial purposes This research seeks to understand the perceptions and attitudes of both participants and the audience of flash mobs and will also examine the impact that commercial use has on this movement The research is divided into three parts The first part involves interviewing the audience of an actual flash mob organized by the author in London and will examine their perceptions towards the event they have just watched The second part involves a questionnaire sent out to the general public including a video of a real flash mob and a video of a commercialized flash mob This questionnaire is divided into two parts whether the interviewee knows what a flash mob is or not The third part of the research involves interviewing the participants of the flash mob movement and examining their perceptions towards the commodification of the flash mobs by a corporation and the possible impacts of this commercialization on the urban movement The analysis shows that the majority of the interviewees can detect the commodification of the real flash mob and the agents see the possibility that the urban movement may become mainstream through the commercial use by corporations

Commodification of Non-human Animals: A Posthumanist Reflection Álvaro López López, Gino Jafet Quintero Venegas, Carol Kline, 2023-12-19 Heritage is a social construction rooted in modern and contemporary societies It is commonly a positive assessment of many elements of the physical and human environment e g ecosystems and landscapes monuments customs gender norms religious practices gastronomy and livelihoods Heritage and tourism are strongly related to each other in that heritage gives rise to tourist attractions and activities and tourism enhances the designation of heritage sites A post humanist perspective the moral valuation of equality between humans and other animals demands that both are sentient beings and self aware of their pain and pleasure Thus the involvement of animals as heritage elements by themselves or as an element of tourist consumption in heritage sites implies their commodification and lack of agency As such these practices are usually unethical since they threaten the animals primary interests not to suffer not to feel pain and to be able to live their freedom This book contains chapters that reveal both the unethical interactions between humans and animals within heritage tourism and those that show experiences in which efforts are made to minimize damage within the commercialization of animals involved as heritage themselves Authentically English Dictionary for the Tourism Industry Verité Reily Collins, 1996 The Problem of Pleasure Carol Jones, Elaine Barclay, Rob Mawby, 2013-03-01 The tourism and leisure industries are big business Opportunities for leisure and tourism have escalated as disposable income technology travel and education have become increasingly available in recent times However this trend has been juxtaposed with an increase in crime particularly since the early the 1950s Acquisitive crimes have been facilitated with the development of more portable and valuable commodities some activities such as drink driving and disorder have now been socially defined as crimes and are more readily identified through new technology such as the increasing use of CCTV The Problem of Pleasure covers them all The purpose of this book is to inform and enlighten a range of readers whose interests may be academic or commercial on possible crime events and modus operandi of criminals The book has a global perspective bringing together leading academics from the UK the US South Africa Australia and New Zealand who examine several aspects of leisure that are vulnerable to crime from illegal hunting to street racing as well as the impact of crime upon tourists and the tourism industry This book will be a key text for students of tourism and leisure as well as criminology and sociology people working in the tourism and recreation industry policy makers and the police Energy Flash Simon

Reynolds, 2012-03-20 Ecstasy did for house music what LSD did for psychedelic rock Now in Energy Flash journalist Simon Reynolds offers a revved up and passionate inside chronicle of how MDMA ecstasy and MIDI the basis for electronica together spawned the unique rave culture of the 1990s England Germany and Holland began tinkering with imported Detroit techno and Chicago house music in the late 1980s and when ecstasy was added to the mix in British clubs a new music subculture was born A longtime writer on the music beat Reynolds started watching and partaking in the rave scene early on observing firsthand ecstasy's sense heightening and serotonin surging effects on the music and the scene In telling the story Reynolds goes way beyond straight music history mixing social history interviews with participants and scene makers and his own analysis of the sounds with the names of key places tracks groups scenes and artists He delves deep into the panoply of rave worthy drugs and proper rave attitude and etiquette exposing a nuanced musical phenomenon Read on and learn why is nitrous oxide is called hippy crack
