ALL OR NOTHING AT ALL

- ARTHUR ALTMAN/
JACK LAWRENCE

All or nothing at all!

Half a love never appealed to me.

If your heart never could yield to me, then I'd rather have nothing at all!

All or nothing at all!

If it's love, there is no in between.

Why begin, then cry for some-thing that might have been? No, I'd rather have nothing at all! But,

Marcel Gauchet and the Crisis of Democratic Politics Natalie J. Doyle,Sean McMorrow,2022-02-25 This book presents for the first time in the English language Marcel Gauchet s interpretation of the challenges faced by contemporary Western societies as a result of the crisis of liberal democratic politics and the growing influence of populism Responding to Gauchet s analysis international experts explore the depoliticising aspects of contemporary democratic culture that explain the appeal of populism neo liberal individualism the cult of the individual and its related human rights and the juridification of all human relationships The book also provides the intellectual context within which Gauchet s understanding of modern society has developed in particular his critical engagement with Marxism and the profound influence of Cornelius Castoriadis and Claude Lefort on his work It highlights the way Gauchet s work remains faithful to an understanding of history that stresses the role of humanity as a collective subject while also seeking to account for both the historical novelty of contemporary individualism and the new form of alienation that radical modernity engenders In doing so the book also opens up new avenues for reflection on the political significance of the contemporary health crisis Marcel Gauchet and the Crisis of Democratic Politics will be of great interest to scholars and postgraduate students of social and political thought political anthropology and sociology political philosophy and political theory
