Dostoevsky Language Faith And Fiction Making The Christian Imagination:

Dostoevsky Rowan Williams, 2008-01-01 Rowan Williams explores the intricacies of speech fiction metaphor and iconography in the works of one of literature's most complex and most misunderstood authors. Williams' investigation focuses on the four major novels of Dostoevsky's maturity: Crime and Punishment, The Idiot, Devils, and The Brothers Karamazov. He argues that understanding Dostoevsky's style and goals as a writer of fiction is inseparable from understanding his religious commitments. Any reader who enters the rich and insightful world of Williams' Dostoevsky will emerge a more thoughtful and appreciative reader for it.

Dostoevsky's Political Thought Richard Avramenko, Lee Trepanier, 2013-05-23 Recognized as one of the greatest novelists of all time, Fyodor Dostoevsky continues to inspire and instigate questions about religion, philosophy, and literature. However, there has been a neglect looking at his political thought: its philosophical and religious foundations, its role in nineteenth-century Europe, and its relevance for us today. Dostoevsky's Political Thought explores Dostoevsky's political thought in his fictional and nonfictional works with contributions from scholars of political science, philosophy, history, and Russian Studies. From a variety of perspectives, these scholars contribute to a greater understanding of Dostoevsky not only as a political thinker but also as a writer, philosopher, and religious thinker.

More Than

Communion Scott MacDougall, 2015-05-21 The dominant contemporary model for ecclesiology—theological views of the church itself—is the ecclesiology of communion. MacDougall argues that communion ecclesiologies are often marked by a problematic theological imagination of the future eschatology. He argues further that as a result our ways of practising and being the church are not as robust as they might otherwise be. Re-imagining the church in the light of God's promised future then becomes a critical conceptual and practical task. MacDougall presents a detailed exploration of what communion ecclesiologies are and some of the problems they raise. He offers two case studies of such theologies by examining how distinguished theologians John Zizioulas and John Milbank understand the church and the future. How these combine in their work and the conceptual and practical implications of their perspectives. He then offers an alternative theological view and demonstrates the effects that such a shift would have. In doing so, MacDougall offers a proposal for recovering the more to communion and to ecclesiology to help us imagine a church that is not beyond the world as in Zizioulas or over against the world as in Milbank but in and for the world in love and service. This concept is worked out in conversation with systematic theologians such as Jürgen Moltmann, Wolfhart Pannenberg, and Johannes Baptist Metz, and by engaging with a theology of Christian practices currently being developed by practical theologians such as Dorothy C. Bass, Craig Dykstra, and those associated with their ongoing project. The potential for the church to become an agent of discipleship, love, and service can best be realized when the church anticipates God's promised perfection in the full communion between God and humanity among human beings within human persons and between humanity and the rest of creation.

The Fellowship of the Beatific Vision Norm Klassen, 2016-11-09 In The Canterbury Tales, Geoffrey Chaucer asks a basic human question: How do we overcome tyranny His answer goes to the heart of a revolutionary way of thinking about the very end of human existence and the nature of created being His answer declared performatively over the course of a symbolic pilgrimage urges the view that humanity has an intrinsic need of grace in order to be itself In portraying this outlook Chaucer contributes to what has been called the palaeo Christian understanding of creaturely freedom Paradoxically genuine freedom grows out of the dependency of all things upon God In imaginatively inhabiting this view of reality Chaucer aligns himself with that other great poet theologian of the Middle Ages Dante Both are true Christian humanists They recognize in art a fragile opportunity not to reduce reality to a set of dogmatic propositions but to participate in an ever deepening mystery Chaucer effectively calls all would be members of the pilgrim fellowship that is the church to behave as artists interpretively responding to God in the finitude of their existence together

Jesus in the Theology of Rowan Williams

Brett Gray,2016-11-17 Brett Gray traces the portrayal of Christ that emerges throughout Williams diverse writings including in his engagements with literature and philosophy What emerges is a vision of Jesus that grows from the roots of the Christian tradition but is pronounced in a contemporary idiom and sensitive to modern concerns Although attentive to the broad sweep of the Christian tradition Williams Christology is also seen in this book to be a particular British artefact shaped in dialogue with thinkers such as Donald MacKinnon and Gillian Rose What is ultimately brought to the surface in this work is the profoundly hopeful if frequently under pronounced eschatology underlying Williams Christology Jesus is the last word changing creation s possibilities and summoning it into an endless and vivifying journey

Dostoevsky's Incarnational Realism Paul J.

Contino,2020-08-17 In this book Paul Contino offers a theological study of Dostoevsky s final novel The Brothers Karamazov He argues that incarnational realism animates the vision of the novel and the decisions and actions of its hero Alyosha Fyodorovich Karamazov The book takes a close look at Alyosha s mentor the Elder Zosima and the way his role as a confessor and his vision of responsibility to all for all develops and influences Alyosha The remainder of the study which serves as a kind of reader s guide to the novel follows Alyosha as he takes up the mantle of his elder develops as a monk in the world and at the end of three days ascends in his vision of Cana The study attends also to Alyosha s brothers and his ministry to them Mitya s struggle to become a new man and Ivan s anguished groping toward responsibility Finally Contino traces Alyosha s generative role with the young people he encounters and his final message of hope

Terrence Malick is one of the most important and controversial filmmakers of the last few decades Yet his renown does not stem from box office receipts but rather from his inimitable cinematic vision that mixes luminous shots of nature dreamlike voiceovers and plots centered on enduring existential questions Although scholars have thoroughly examined Malick s background in philosophy they have been slower to respond to his theological concerns This volume is the first to focus on the ways in which Malick integrates theological inquiries and motifs into his films The book begins with an exploration of Malick s career as a filmmaker and shows how his Heideggerian interests relate to theology Further essays from established
