Global Citizenship Education in European Multicultural Contexts: Opportunities and Challenges

Myriam Radhouane and Kathrine Maleq

Abstract Deep societal changes resulting from globalization, increased cultural and ethnic diversity and the expansion of ICT (information and communication technology) have generated interest in the concept of global citizenship resulting in a growing body of literature on global citizenship education (GCE).

Despite its attractiveness, GCE appears nevertheless conceptually fragile and difficult to implement in national contexts. This chapter provides a comparative perspective on conceptions and current challenges for citizenship education in three European countries: France, Switzerland and England. We analyze how contents associated with global dimensions are integrated into educational policies and curricula, thereby highlighting the similarities and differences between contexts. We illustrate how France and England have brought citizenship education and the promotion of 'national values' to the forefront of the political agenda, with the specific aim of preventing radicalization.

Finally, we present considerations for the operationalization of GCE and argue that global citizenship may provide an opportunity to value multiple identities.

Introduction

Recently, the development of global citizenship education (GCE) and the building of students' global citizenship competencies has become a strong policy focus in international agendas, in particular in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development (see Introduction chapter). Consequently, GCE represents a strategic area for UNESCO's Education Sector Program (UNESCO 2019) and is the new buzzword in educational landscapes around the world (Akkari and Maleq 2019).

The Futures of Legal Education and the Legal Profession Hilary Sommerlad, Sonia Harris-Short, Steven Vaughan, Richard Young, 2015-03-26 We are currently witnessing an unprecedented transformation in the legal profession and legal education The Legal Services Act 2007 and the Legal Aid Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Act 2012 have both enabled and necessitated dramatic structural changes to the profession as well as impacting on its ethos and ethicality The recent Legal Education and Training Review LETR promises similarly dramatic change to the provision of legal education reflecting the shifting landscape of both the legal professional market and Higher Education in general These transformative changes bring both exciting opportunities and challenges with which everyone involved in the law from University lecturers to Senior Partners in leading law firms to the judiciary must grapple This edited collection comprises a selection of papers presented at the 2nd conference of CEPLER Birmingham Law School's Centre for Professional Legal Education and Research The aim of the Conference and thus this collection was to bring together leading academic scholars senior figures from professional practice policy makers and representatives of the regulatory authorities to reflect on the key issues arising from this transformative moment As such this volume of essays covers diverse ground from curriculum development to professional theory enriched and enhanced by the range of backgrounds and perspectives of its contributors

Legal Education in the Global Context Christopher Gane, Robin Hui Huang, 2017-05-15 This book discusses the opportunities and challenges facing legal education in the era of globalization It identifies the knowledge and skills that law students will require in order to prepare for the practice of tomorrow and explores pedagogical shifts legal education needs to make inside and outside of the classroom With contributions from leading experts on legal education from various jurisdictions across the globe the work combines theoretical depth with practical insights Seeking to understand the changing landscape of legal education in the era of globalization the contributions find that law schools can and must adopt educational strategies that at least present students with different understandings of what studying and practicing law is meant to be about They find that law schools need to offer their students choices a vision of practice that is not driven entirely by the demands of the marketplace or the needs of major international law firms Bridging the gap between theory and practice this book makes a significant contribution to the impact of globalization on legal education and how students and law schools need to adapt for the future It will be of great interest to academics and students of comparative legal studies and legal education as well as policy makers and practitioners

Global Clinical Legal Education Jeff Giddings, 2025-01-28 This book explores the distinctive nature of clinical legal education in a range of global contexts The emergence of law school based clinical legal education has been recognised as a major innovation in modern legal education At its best it integrates the academic rigour of university based learning with the practical ethical and social justice insights that come from structured work with clients This book examines what makes clinic different from other aspects of legal education and how it differs from experiential learning in other disciplines particularly in its emphasis on social justice It provides an analysis of various models that support student learning in community settings from 66 contributors across the globe Learning goals teaching methods focus areas forms of student involvement engagement with lawyers and the challenges faced are all identified as important in giving clinical legal education its local flavour Exploring the role of technology in clinic and the significant growth in technology based clinics the book reviews the ways in which clinics harness technology to serve diverse client communities and extend the global reach of clinical legal education particularly in light of the ongoing COVID 19 pandemic This book will be of particular interest to researchers in the fields of clinical legal education and the use of emerging technologies in legal education

Legal Education Caroline Strevens, Richard Grimes, Edward Phillips, 2016-04-22 The importance of simulation in education specifically in legal subjects is here discussed and explored within this innovative collection Demonstrating how simulation can be constructed and developed for learning teaching and assessment the text argues that simulation is a pedagogically valuable and practical tool in teaching the modern law curriculum With contributions from law teachers within the UK Australia Hong Kong South Africa and the USA the authors draw on their experiences in teaching law in the areas of clinical legal education legal process evidence criminal law family law and employment law as well as teaching law to non law students They claim that simulation as a form of experiential and problem based learning enables students to integrate the classroom experience with the real world experiences they will encounter in their professional lives This book will be of relevance not only to law teachers but university teachers generally as well as those interested in legal education and the theory of law

Legal Issues in Global Contexts Kirk St. Amant, Martine Rife, 2016-12-05 Today it has been said the world is flat as online media allow information to move easily from point to point across the earth International legal differences however are increasingly affecting the ease with which data and ideas can be shared across nations Copyright law for example affects the international flow of materials by stipulating who has the right to replicate or to share certain kinds of content Similarly perspectives on privacy rights can differ from nation to nation and affect how personal information is shared globally Moreover national laws can affect the exchange of ideas by stipulating the language in which information must be presented in different geopolitical regions Today's technical communicators need to understand how legal factors can affect communication practices if they wish to work effectively in global contexts This collection provides an overview of different legal aspects that technical communicators might encounter when creating materials or sharing information in international environments Through addressing topics ranging from privacy rights and information exchange to the legalities of business practices in virtual worlds and perspectives on authorship and ownership the contributors to this volume examine a variety of communication based legal issues that can cause problems or miscommunication in international interactions Reviewing such topics from different perspectives the authors collectively provide ideas that could serve as a foundation for creating best practices on or for engaging in future research in the area of legal issues in international settings
