Seeing The Hidden Minority Andrea L. Tyler, Stephen Hancock, Sonya C. Richardson, 2020-06-01 The participation of Black students in science technology engineering and mathematics STEM fields is an issue of national concern Educators and policymakers are seeking to promote STEM studies and eventual degree attainment especially those from underrepresented groups including Black students women economically disadvantaged and students with disabilities Literature shows that this has been of great interest to researchers policymakers and institutions for several years Nettles Council of Graduate School CGS 2009 National Science Foundation NSF 2006 therefore an extensive understanding of access attrition and degree completion for Black students in STEM is needed According to Hussar and Bailey 2014 the Black and Latino postsecondary enrollment rates will increase by approximately 25% between 2011 and 2022 It is critical that this projected enrollment increase translates into an increase in Black student STEM enrollment persistence and consequently STEM workforce In view of the shifting demographic landscape addressing access equity and achievement for Black students in STEM is essential Institutions whether they are secondary or postsecondary all have unique formal and informal academic structures that students must learn to navigate in order to become academically and socially acclimated to the institution Tyler Brothers Haynes 2014 Therefore positive experience with the academic environment becomes critical to the success of a student persisting and graduating Understanding and addressing the challenges faced by Black students in STEM begins with understanding the complexities they face at all levels of education A sense of urgency is now needed to explore these complexities and how they impact students at all educational levels This book will explore hidden figures and concerns of social connectedness mentoring practices and identity constructs that uncover unnoticed talent pools and encourage STEM matriculation among Black STEM students in preK 12 and post secondary landscapes Section 1 Socialization Social discourse concerning how male and females are supposed to enact their socially sanctioned roles is being played out daily in educational institutions Individuals who chose STEM education and STEM careers are constantly battling this social discourse It is necessary for P 20 STEM spaces to examine and integrate understanding of socialization within the larger societal culture for systemic and lasting change to happen Section 2 Mentoring A nurturing process in which a more skilled or more experienced person serving as a role model teaches sponsors encourages counsels and befriends a less skilled or less experienced person for the purpose of promoting the latter s academic professional and or personal development Section 3 Identity Research focusing on identity constructs in STEM has become more common especially as it relates to student retention and attrition Researchers have been able to use identity as a way to examine how social stigma can cause students to dis identify within STEM spaces

False Front Kenneth Lowande,2024-10-07 A provocative new perspective on presidential power Border walls school bathrooms student loans gun control diversity abortion climate change today nothing seems out of reach for the president s pen But after all the press releases ceremonies and speeches shockingly little gets done The American presidency promises to solve America s problems but presidents unilateral solutions are often weak even empty Kenneth Lowande argues this is no accident The US political system is not set up to allow presidents to solve major policy problems yet it lays these problems at their doorstep and there is no other elected official better positioned to attract attention by appearing to govern Like any politician presidents are strategic actors who seek symbolic wins They pursue executive actions even when they know that these will fail because doing so allows them to put on a compelling show for key constituencies But these empty presidential actions are not without their costs they divert energy from effective government and over time undermine public trust Drawing on thousands of executive actions news coverage interviews and presidential archives False Front shows that the real root of presidential power is in what presidents can get away with not doing

Understanding the Work of Student Affairs

Professionals at Minority Serving Institutions Robert T. Palmer, Dina C. Maramba, Taryn Ozuna Allen, Andrew T. Arroyo, 2021-12-28 This volume explores the unique experiences of student affairs professionals at Minority Serving Institutions MSIs in the US. In doing so, it highlights broader challenges faced by MSIs and highlights ways in which these have been countered by effective student affairs practice. Recognizing that the role of student affairs practitioners at MSIs often differs from that of their contemporaries in other types of institution, this volume offers important insight into the context of student affairs at Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Predominantly Black Institutions, Hispanic Serving Institutions, and Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institutions. Drawing on rich qualitative data, chapters identify examples of best practices to foster student growth, ensure culturally relevant approaches, and enhance collaboration between academic and administrative departments. The volume thereby showcases the important contribution that these institutions and the professionals within them make to the US Higher Education landscape and the success of minority students. This text will benefit researchers, academics, and educators with an interest in student affairs practice, higher education management, and inclusive education. Those interested in the sociology of education as well as race and ethnicity studies will also benefit from the volume. Educating a Diverse Nation Clifton Conrad, Marybeth

Gasman, 2015-03-09 Educating a Diverse Nation turns a spotlight on colleges and universities dedicated to serving minority and low-income students of all ages. It highlights innovative programs that are advancing persistence and learning and it identifies specific strategies for empowering nontraditional students to succeed despite many obstacles. Commerce

Business Daily, 1997-12-31 The Guidebook of Federal Resources for K-12 Mathematics and Science, 2004 Contains directories of federal agencies that promote mathematics and science education at elementary and secondary levels, organized in sections by agency name, national program name, and state highlights by region. The NIH Record, 1992

Bohemian Bolsheviks Alan M. Wald, 2025-04-03 The rubric Bohemian Bolsheviks captures Alan Wald's sustained fascination with persistent contradictions between the image of Left political commitment and the actuality of experience, especially in relation to cultural work and cultural workers. Marxist political alignment engages a welter of intimate and biographical factors enriching the record of a varied history of fiction, poetry, literary criticism, and other intellectual practices. Exploring a field of study marked by enduring paradoxes of modernity, this volume is a sharp reminder that historical narrative not only shapes our sense of the terrain under our feet but also the horizon in front of us. The "How To"
