East Asia and Eastern Europe in a Globalized Perspective Bernhard Seliger, Jüri Sepp, Ralph Michael Wrobel, 2015 This book compares development experiences from South Korea and Estonia which are both very successful examples of development within their region The development experience of states in the 20th century offers a bewildering variety and often downright contradicting models which nevertheless led to catching up and rapid growth rates leaving policy makers in countries trying to emulate such models at a loss Over time and through various crises on the regional and worldwide level the experience of East Asian states became increasingly an interesting object of study This was related to the successful long term growth experience of countries like South Korea but also to successful models of state transformation which though in a different political setting achieved high growth rates without the deep transformation recession typical for European transformation states Regime Transformations and Global Realignments Kanta Ahuja, Huub Coppens, Herman van der Wusten, 1993-12-14 Papers presented at a seminar organized by Indo Dutch Programme on Alternatives in Development in Netherlands December 7 10 1992 The Open Economy and Its Enemies Jane Duckett, 2006 The Politics of East

European Area Studies Gareth Dale, Katalin Miklossy, Dieter Segert, 2017-09-13 Following the end of the Cold War and European Union enlargement in what sense does Eastern Europe continue to exist as a meaningful geo political concept In addressing this question contributors to this volume Alex Cistelean Robert Bideleux Katalin Mikl ssy and Dieter Segert tease out the implications for an Area Studies approach to the region They examine its contradictory situation within discourses of orientalisation on one hand posited as the underdeveloped pendant to its western neighbours on the other largely Christian by religion and an integral part of a continent that dominated the world They uncover the roots of area studies in the colonial paradigm by which great powers promote the creation of predictive problem solving knowledge that is immediately apprehendable for decision makers helping them to take advantage of a region s resources and strategic position but which tends to homogenise the region s geography and history For critical inquiry they argue the challenge is to delineate transparently the reasons underlying Eastern Europe s construction as an area of study to identify the epistemological interests of motivated organisations such as funding agencies and political bodies and to counter the ongoing orientalism of Western perspectives toward the East This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Contemporary Central and Eastern Europe Evolving Regional Values and Mobilities in Global Contexts Pierre Chabal, Yann

Alix, Kuralay Baizakova, 2021-01-29 This book analyses the gradual fusion of Europe and Asia into a Eurasian dynamic combining institutional and identity aspects Gathering about thirty scholars from a dozen Eurasian countries it shows that Eurasian continental developments are outgrowing sub region designations such as Western Europe Southeast Asia East Asia and Central Asia

The Political Economy of Eastern Europe 30 Years Into the 'Transition' Agnes Gagyi, Ondřej Slačálek, 2022

By the 30th anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall in most parts of Eastern Europe high expectations associated with postsocialist transition have been substituted by disillusionment After 1990 Eastern Europe has been internationally treated with a low interest acknowledgement of what was understood as a slow and erratic but unquestionable process of integration in a Western dominated world order In the context of today's geopolitical reorganization East European examples of authoritarian politics once again become discussed as significant reference points for Western and global politics This book represents a contribution to this debate from a distinctive East European perspective that of new left scholars and activists from the region whose lifetime largely corresponds to the transformations of the postsocialist period and who came to develop an understanding of their environment in terms of its relations to global capitalist processes A both theoretical and empirical contribution the book provides essential insights on topics conventionally associated with East European transition from privatization to the politicized slogans of corruption or civil society and analyzes their connection to the newest reconfigurations of postsocialist capitalist regimes As a contribution to contemporary debates on the present global socio political transformation this collection does not only seek to debate analytical statements but also to change the field where analytical stakes are set by adding perspectives that think Eastern Europe's global relations from within the regional context and its political stakes Agnes Gagyi works on East European politics and social movements from the perspective of the region's long term global integration She is researcher on East European social movements at the University of Gothenburg and member of the Working Group for Public Sociology Helyzet in Budapest Ondřej Slačálek is a political scientist and journalist he focuses on East European politics nationalism and social movements He works at Charles University Prague He is a regular collaborator of Czech new left journal A2 A2larm

Communication in Eastern Europe Fred L. Casmir, 2012-12-06 This volume represents a clear attempt to learn something from the events in Eastern European countries It does not start with simplistic or old assumptions based on convenient Western communication models but instead takes a new approach If chaos theory could fundamentally change how physicists looked at order in the universe then it may be of value for communication scholars to attempt to understand the diversity of chaos or order in the human universe rather than attempt to force existing models on it for their own explanatory purposes This book is not merely based on the study of select groups of university students or on laboratory settings created in the minds of social scientists It seeks to understand some of the real world including the historical backgrounds and the theoretical assumptions brought to studies of intercultural conflicts Using personal and professional insights developed during firsthand contacts with existing situations chapter authors illustrate some of the realities by using the complexity of changes in Eastern European states during the final decade of the 20th century From education to business from the role of women to the role of mass media from the impact of political systems to the impact of history communication between those who are culturally diverse though they may have been arbitrarily forced to live under the same political roof is the theme of these scholarly studies The editor's reason for developing this volume of original essays is his belief that diversity rather than assumed similarity or even sameness based on the use of inadequate terminology is necessary for learning from contemporary human experiences He further believes that diversity and the significant roles of cultural values as well as of history need to become key concepts in the model with which to begin when it comes to the study of various aspects of intercultural communication It is therefore vital that scholars who represent various points of view and backgrounds contribute to that process After all understanding what is happening in the world is centrally anchored in or related to effective and successful intercultural communication between scholars who have different academic and personal backgrounds

Global Trends in Eastern Europe Professor Nikolai Genov, 2013-03-28 Eastern Europe was once clearly defined by the centralized political and economic organization of the societies in the region They shared the same official ideology and were members of the same alliances After 1989 the region collapsed in an economic political and cultural implosion What were the moving forces of this profound change What are its consequences Could we try to reasonably foresee any future developments In this thought provoking book Nikolai Genov presents a systematic description and explanation of Eastern European societal transformations after 1989 They are interpreted as adaptations to four global trends upgrading the rationality of organizations individualization spreading of instrumental activism and universalization of value normative systems Adaptations to these trends have generally been successful However Genov notes that the process is marked by many failures as well They are mostly caused by path dependency in the societal development and by the varying quality of relevant decisions other destructive developments are due to contradictions in the global trends themselves Guided by the assumption that the societal and supranational integration mechanisms in Eastern Europe before 1989 could not resist the overwhelming power of global trends Genov's controversial findings question visions about the end of history and simultaneously strengthen the confidence that most complex macro social processes can be rationally managed A timely book allowing for a much needed engagement in contemporary debates on the controversial processes in Eastern European transitions
