

Origin of the Earth

The Earth probably formed from material in the solar nebula—the cloud of gas and dust that led to the formation of the Sun. This material gradually grew into a larger and larger body that became a molten ball of rock and metal. Later the rocky crust formed, its surface cooling enough to allow the continents to appear. Even later the oceans arrived, as well as the tiny organisms that released oxygen into the atmosphere. Although much of this gas was initially consumed in chemical reactions, over time, it allowed the development of multicellular organisms and an explosion of life that took place at the start of the Paleozoic Era, 542 million years ago.

Continental Drift

This map shows the continents which are part of Gondwana which had split across the Earth's surface at the end of the Paleozoic period. The continents were split into Africa, North America, and South America. The continents were split into Africa, North America, and South America.
