Eating In The Dark Americas Experiment With Genetically Engineered Food:

Eating in the Dark Kathleen Hart, 2007-12-18 Most Americans eat genetically modified food on a daily basis but few of us are aware we're eating something that has been altered. Meanwhile consumers abroad refuse to buy our engineered crops; their groceries are labeled so that everyone knows if the contents have been modified. What's going on here? Why does the U.S. government treat engineered foods so differently from the rest of the world? Eating in the Dark tells the story of how these new foods quietly entered America's food supply. Kathleen Hart explores biotechnology's real potential to enhance nutrition and cut farmers' expenses. She also reveals the process by which American government agencies decided not to label genetically modified food and not to require biotech companies to perform even basic safety tests on their products. Combining a balanced perspective with a sense of urgency, Eating in the Dark is a captivating and important story, an account of the science and politics propelling the genetic alteration of our food. Food, Inc. Peter Pringle, 2010-05-11 For most people the global war over genetically modified foods is a distant and confusing one The battles are conducted in the mystifying language of genetics A handful of corporate life science giants such as Monsanto are pitted against a worldwide network of anticorporate ecowarriors like Greenpeace And yet the possible benefits of biotech agriculture to our food supply are too vital to be left to either partisan The companies claim to be leading a new agricultural revolution that will save the world with crops modified to survive frost drought pests and plague The greens warn that playing God with plant genes is dangerous It could create new allergies upset ecosystems destroy biodiversity and produce uncontrollable mutations Worst of all the antibiotech forces say a single food conglomerate could end up telling us what to eat In Food Inc acclaimed journalist Peter Pringle shows how both sides in this overheated conflict have made false promises engaged in propaganda science and indulged in fear mongering In this urgent dispatch he suggests that a fertile partnership between consumers corporations scientists and farmers could still allow the biotech harvest to reach its full potential in helping to overcome the problem of world hunger providing nutritious food and keeping the environment healthy
