

Chronology: Study Guide: Developmental Theories, Adams. Concept Adams: Conceptual Absorption.

- Adams argues concepts from one theory could be used independent concepts from another theory.

- Example: Social bonding and social learning theories.

1.] "Bond" vs. theories of antisocial "behaviors"

2.] "Commitment" vs. differential reinforcement

3.] "Attachment" vs. intensity of social reinforcement.

Contribution: Social learning predicts that commitment attachment increases desistance.

Proposition Integration:

- Ellis's integrative model (chain, bonding, learning)

- Fewer assumptions of learning theory (in contrast to control theory) because he believes it is unlikely that socialization (SAL) results in criminal behavior.

- Empirical finding that association with delinquent youth increases crime leads Adams to reform model

Hirschi's Interactional Theory: Causal forces among social structure, social learning, and social bonding variables interact rather than operate in broad measure.

Developmental and Life-Course Theories

- Goal is to understand stability and change in criminal and deviant behavior through time at different life stages.
