Restorative Approaches to Conflict in Schools Edward Sellman, Hilary Cremin, Gilleen McCluskey, 2013-09-05 Drawing on recent international developments in criminal justice Restorative Approaches to Conflict in Schools highlights the long term ineffectiveness of punitive models of discipline in education contexts and examines an alternative approach underpinned by the principles of restorative justice This approach provides an opportunity for adults and young people to engage with a range of processes such as group conferencing and peer mediation whereby conflict and harm are confronted and repaired a future rather than past orientation is developed relationships are built upon the values and attitudes of respect inclusion and equality pupils learn inter personal and problem solving skills as well as social responsibility staff develop skills and confidence in working restoratively the risk of future repeat problems is minimised and a positive school ethos is developed These approaches have proven to be highly effective in criminal justice systems around the world and are beginning to be applied more widely in educational contexts This edited volume draws together for the first time contributions from an interdisciplinary field of international experts and practitioners on the subject and offers both critique and guidance in order that the implementation of restorative approaches in schools may be undertaken thoughtfully and sustainably This exciting new text will be a key reference book for locating contemporary international and inter disciplinary debate in the field Transitional Justice and the 'Disappeared' of Northern Ireland Lauren Dempster, 2019-06-11 This book employs a transitional justice lens to address the disappearances that occurred during the Northern Ireland conflict or Troubles and the post conflict response to these disappearances Despite an extensive literature around dealing with the past in Northern Ireland as well as a substantial body of scholarship on disappearances in other national contexts there has been little scholarly scrutiny of disappearances in post conflict Northern Ireland Although the Good Friday Agreement brought relative peace to Northern Ireland no provision was made for the establishment of some form of overarching truth and reconciliation commission aimed at comprehensively addressing the legacy of violence Nevertheless a mechanism to recover the remains of the disappeared the Independent Commission for the Location of Victims Remains ICLVR was established and has in fact proven to be quite effective As a result the reactions of key constituencies to the disappearances can be used as a prism through which to comprehensively explore issues of relevance to transitional justice scholars and practitioners Pursuing an interdisciplinary approach and based on extensive empirical research this book provides a multifaceted exploration of the responses of these constituencies to the practice of disappearing It engages with transitional justice themes including silence memory truth acknowledgement and apology Key issues examined include the mobilisation efforts of families of the disappeared efforts by a former non state armed group to address its legacy of violence the utility of a limited immunity mechanism to incentivise information provision and the interplay between silence and memory in the shaping of a collective societal understanding of the disappeared

Whose Criminal Justice? Katherine Doolin, John Child, 2011-03-14 Drawing on the different disciplines of law criminology forensic psychology social work and public management the contributors explore the shifts and progress made in criminal justice in England and Wales over the past two decades and highlight the possibilities and pitfalls for the future

Justice, Community and Civil Society Joanna Shapland, 2013-05-13 Over the last decade there has arisen considerable disquiet about the relationship between criminal justice and its publics This has been expressed in a variety of different ways ranging from a concern that state criminal justice has moved too far away from the concerns of ordinary people become too distant too out of touch insufficiently reflective of different groups in society to the belief that the police have been attending to the wrong priorities that the state has failed to reduce crime that people still feel a general sense of insecurity Governments have sought to respond to these concerns throughout Europe and North America but the results have challenged people's deeply held beliefs about what justice is and what the state's role should be The need to innovate in response to local demands has hence resulted in some very different initiatives This book is concerned to delve further into this contested relationship between criminal justice and its publics Written by experts from different countries as a new initiative in comparative criminal justice it reveals how different the intrinsic cultural attitudes in relation to criminal justice are across Europe This is a time when states monopoly on criminal justice is being questioned and they are being asked on what basis their legitimacy rests challenged by both globalization and localization The answers reflect both cultural specificity and for some broader moves towards reaching out to citizens and associations representing citizens

Restoring Justice after Large-scale Violent Conflicts Ivo Aertsen, Jana Arsovska, Holger-C Rohne, Marta Valiñas, Kris Vanspauwen, 2013-05-13 This book provides a comparative analysis of the potential of restorative justice approaches to dealing with mass victimization in the context of large scale violent conflicts focusing on case studies from Kosovo Israel Palestine and Congo incorporating contributions from leading authorities in these areas One of the main objectives of the book is to examine if how and to what extent restorative justice is applicable in various different cultural social and historical contexts and what common themes can be identified within the different regions under analysis The book will also provide a critical analysis of the UN Basic Principles on the use of restorative justice programmes in criminal matters as applied to the context of large scale violence

Truth and Transitional Justice Alice Panepinto, 2022-02-24 With a unique transitional justice perspective on the Arab Spring this book assesses the relocation of transitional justice from the international paradigm to Islamic legal systems The Arab uprisings and new and old conflicts in the Middle East North Africa and other contexts where Islam is a prominent religion have sparked an interest in localising transitional justice in the legal systems of Muslim majority communities to uncover the truth about past abuse and ensure accountability for widespread human rights violations This raises pressing questions around how the international paradigm of transitional justice and in particular its truth seeking aims might be implemented and adapted to local settings characterised by Muslim majority populations and at the same time drawing from relevant norms and principles of Islamic law This book offers a critical analysis of the relocation of transitional justice from the international paradigm to the legal systems of Muslim majority societies in light of the inherently pluralistic realities of these contexts It also investigates synergies between international law and Islamic law in furthering truth seeking the formation of collective memories and the victims right to know the truth as key aims of the international paradigm of transitional justice and broadly supported by the shari ah This book will be a useful reference for scholars practitioners and policymakers seeking to better understand the normative underpinnings of potential transitional truth seeking initiatives in the legal systems of Muslim majority societies At the same time it also proposes a more critical and creative way of thinking about the challenges and opportunities of localising transitional justice in contexts where the principles and ideas of Islamic law carry different meanings

Youth, Crime and Justice Cyndi Banks, 2013 Youth Crime and Justice encourages readers to explore the connections between social political economic and cultural conditions and juvenile crime It clearly examines all the important comparative and transnational research studies for each topic Throughout appropriate qualitative studies are used to provide context and explain the theories in practice This accessible and innovative textbook will be an indispensable resource for senior undergraduates and postgraduates in criminology criminal justice and sociology talked about developments in the field of crime and justice. Its advocates and practitioners argue that state punishment society's customary response to crime neither meets the needs of crime victims nor prevents reoffending. In its place, they suggest, should be restorative justice, in which families and communities of offenders encourage them to take responsibility for the consequences of their actions, express repentance, and repair the harm they have done. First published in 2002, Restorative Justice: Ideas, Values, Debates is renowned worldwide as an accessible, balanced, and invaluable analysis of the argument that restorative justice can provide an attractive alternative to traditional responses to crime. The second edition includes a new chapter identifying and analyzing fundamental shifts and developments in restorative justice thinking over the last decade. It suggests that the campaign for restorative justice has not only grown rapidly in the last decade but has also changed in its focus and character. What started as a campaign to revolutionize criminal justice has evolved into a social movement that aspires to implant restorative values into the fabric of everyday life. This new edition explores the implications of this development for restorative justice's claim to provide a feasible and desirable alternative to mainstream thinking on matters of crime and justice. This book provides an essential introduction to the most fundamental and distinctive ideas of restorative justice and will appeal to students of criminology, law, or related disciplines, or researchers and professionals with an interest in crime and justice issues. In addition, it extends the debate about the meaning of restorative justice, pros, cons, and wider significance; hence, it will also be of interest to those already familiar with the topic.
