The human _____ system is essential to the continuity of life in our species. Our reproductive system is _____; it requires two parents and produces genetically _____ offspring. This means that we are similar to both of our parents, but not _____ like either one of them. Not all organisms reproduce sexually. Those that do not reproduce sexually reproduce _____, which requires only one parent and produces genetically identical offspring.

The male and female reproductive _____ are similar in structure and identical in function – they both serve to produce _____ cells that unite to create a new organism. However, the female system holds the responsibility for nurturing and developing the growing _____. As the embryo grows over time, it becomes known as a _____. The female system possesses the organ known as the _____ which is where the fetus grows and develops for _____ weeks before birth takes place.

Both the male and female systems produce sex _____ that each contain _____ chromosomes. The male sex cell is called _____; the female sex cell is called the _____. When the sperm and egg unite, we call this process _____. Once that event occurs, the one-celled embryo can grow and _____ into the multi-cellular, complex organisms that adult humans are.

Males create sperm cells inside their _____; females have similar structures that possess their egg cells called _____. Humans utilize _____ fertilisation, when the male deposits his sperm inside the female. Other organisms, such as many fish species, utilize external fertilisation where the male and female organisms deposit their sperm and eggs outside of the body.
