

CMS Definition of Observation:

- It is rare that an observation status would span over 48 hours. Usually the determination to discharge or admit the patient to the hospital can be made within 24 hours.
- Medicare does not specify what type of bed or unit a patient must be in if they are observation status.
- Medicare coverage for observation services requires at least 8 hours of monitoring.
Observation time begins at the time the physician writes the order and it ends when the patient is actually discharged from the hospital or admitted as an inpatient. This time DOES NOT include the time a patient may spend waiting on transportation to get home.
