Deconstructing the gender gap in rural financial inclusion Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations , 2020-08-01 In recent years along with the growing recognition of the rural gender gap in financial access as a key constraint to rural development research has focused increasingly more towards analysing in depth the financial habits and patterns followed by women in rural areas in order to produce observations and insights that could foster a more gender sensitive policy approach towards financial inclusion In line with this trend this paper sets to explore the financial habits and constraints of rural women in two Sub Saharan African countries Mozambique Tanzania both at country and village level with the objective of answering how and why they differ from those of their male counterparts Building on the results achieved through this analysis as well as on the general literature available on the topic this paper aims to develop a range of general recommendations that can assist both local policymakers and other public stakeholders as well as formal financial service providers in shaping their approach towards a more gender sensitive provision of rural financial services

Retooling Global Economic Governance United Nations, 2014-02-13 This book is available as open access through the Bloomsbury Open Access programme and is available on bloomsburycollections.com In Retooling Global Development and Governance a team of UN experts debate new ideas about how to overcome deficiencies in the ongoing process of globalization and in the existing mechanisms for global economic governance They do not claim to offer a blueprint rather a set of ideas that could become the basis for a coherent toolbox designed to guide development policies and international cooperation Promising directions for reform discussed in the book include Strengthening government capacities for formulating and implementing national development strategies New strategies for ensuring that official development assistance is aligned with national priorities Enhancing international trade and financial systems so that countries with limited capabilities can successfully integrate into the global economy Creating new mechanisms for dealing with deficiencies such as specialized multilateral frameworks through which to govern international migration and labour mobility international financial regulation multinational corporations and global value chains regulation and sovereign debt workouts Above all the book highlights the need for a strong mechanism for global economic coordination to establish coherence across all areas of global economic governance

Poverty and the Millennium Development Goals Alberto Cimadamore, Gabriele Koehler, Thomas Pogge, 2016-02-15 As the Millennium Development Goals MDGs pass their 2015 deadline and the international community begins to discuss the future of UN development policy Poverty and the Millennium Development Goals brings together leading economists from both the global North and South to provide a much needed critique of the prevailing development agenda By examining current development efforts goals and policies it exposes the structurally flawed and misleading measurements of poverty and hunger on which these efforts have been based and which have led official sources to routinely underestimate the scale of world poverty even as the global distribution of wealth becomes ever more imbalanced
