Resumo: A literatura educacional documenta recorrentemente a importância do trabalho do diretor escolar para os resultados educacionais. Contudo, os diretores são preparados em sua formação inicial para tal função? Este artigo apresenta uma análise das matrizes curriculares de uma amostra de cursos de licenciatura, com foco na oferta de formação em gestão escolar. Discussões a hipótese de que os cursos que oferecem a formação inicial da maioria desses profissionais não parecem prepará-los para os desafios que a função de diretor apresenta nas escolas públicas brasileiras.

Abstract: Educational literature recurrently documents the importance of the school principal's work for educational outcomes. However, are principals prepared, in their initial training, for such duties? This article presents a reflection about the curricula of a sample from undergraduate courses, focusing on the available training in school management. It discusses the hypothesis that the undergraduate courses which offer the initial training for these professionals were unable to prepare them for the challenges that the role of school principal presents at Brazilian public schools.
