Understanding Art in Primary Schools Les Tickle, 2014-01-14 Even the youngest children in primary schools are now required not only to make art but also to study it developing an understanding of the huge variety of art and craft from different times and places But how do teachers actually tackle this when most have not studied art themselves This collection brings together case studies to show how a variety of teachers have used one particular art collection as a focus for practical art Throughout the voices of the children involved show us how they react to their encounters with art objects This wealth of first hand evidence and practical experience will benefit all teachers

Naked Truths: Adventures in Art George Rufus Harman, 2025-02-21 An erotic and often humorous memoir of a male life model in the UK This is the story of a man s unconventional upbringing in the Australian outback a boy who became obsessed with art books art and ballet He was introduced to these creative outlets by his mum who recognised that as a hyperactive kid he was only ever still when he had his nose in art books His mum also recognised the need to combine and focus his creative interests with disciplined physical activity She therefore saw fit to introduce him to ballet classes at the age of six The story unfolds building on the influence of women in his early life as he completes his ballet exams and moves to live and work in the UK as a dancer actor and life model What was intended as a gap year in the UK became his permanent country of residence An early fortuitous meeting with a professional female artist in London led him to become immersed in the art world as a professional male life model initially to supplement his income but mainly to satisfy his first love of expressive figurative art This in turn led him into a number of erotic and sometimes bizarre sexual encounters and situations with female creatives in environments where they felt adventurous and secure enough to express and indulge in their own fantasies with him

The NAEP 1997 Arts Report Card Hilary R. Persky, Brent A. Sandene, Janice M. Askew, 1998 The last several years have seen a growing resolve among educators and policymakers to assure the place of a solid arts education in U S schools In 1997 the National Assessment of Educational Progress NAEP conducted a national assessment in the arts at grade 8. The assessment included the areas of music, theater, and visual arts. For each of these arts areas, this Report Card describes the achievement of eighth graders within the general population and in various subgroups. Taken with the information provided about instructional and institutional variables, this report gives a context for evaluating the status of students learning in the arts. The arts assessment was designed to measure the content specifications described in the arts framework for NAEP. The arts have a unique capacity to integrate intellect, emotions, and physical skills in the creation of meaning. Meaningful arts assessments need to be built around three arts processes: creating, performing, and responding. To capture these processes, the arts assessment exercises included authentic tasks that assessed students' knowledge and skills and constructed response and multiple choice questions that explore students' abilities to describe, analyze, interpret, and evaluate works of art in written form. Data are reported in overall summaries for creating, performing, and responding in terms of student and school-reported background variables. Student results for theater are discussed in terms of teacher-reported background variables as well. The major findings of the assessment are that a large percentage of grade 8 students attend schools in which music and visual arts were taught usually by specialists; most students attended schools in which instruction following district or state curricula was offered in music and visual arts but not in theater or dance; and most visual arts and music instruction took place in school facilities that were dedicated to that subject. What Makes an Artwork Great? Michael H. Mitias, 2024-06-04. Michael Mitias presents, explains, and defends in some detail the features that make an artwork great: magic, universality, and the test of time. Although some aestheticians beginning with Longinus discussed these features during the past two millennia, they did not analyze them comprehensively nor did they justify them from the standpoint of a satisfactory conception of the nature of art. In this book, the author first explains the nature of the features that make an artifact art and then proceeds to establish the validity of his thesis on firm epistemological and ontological foundations. In his endeavor to explicate the nature of this foundation, the author answers four questions: First, what is the genesis of the artwork? What makes it art? He answers this question by advancing a concept of aesthetic depth. The essence of this depth is human meaning. Second, under what perceptual conditions does this depth come to life in the process of aesthetic perception? Third, what is the role of the concept of aesthetic depth in the analysis of the nature of the great artwork? How does the concept of aesthetic depth function as a principle of explanation? Fourth, how can we justify the attribution of magic, universality, and the test of time to the great work of art? In short, an understanding of the genesis of the artwork, aesthetic depth, aesthetic value, and aesthetic perception is indispensable for an adequate conception of greatness in art.

The Invention of Art History in Ancient Greece Jeremy Tanner, 2006-03-23. The ancient Greeks developed their own very specific ethos of art appreciation, advocating a rational involvement with art. This book explores why the ancient Greeks started to write art history and how the writing of art history transformed the social functions of art in the Greek world. It looks at the invention of the genre of portraiture and the social uses to which portraits were put in the city state Later chapters explore how artists sought to enhance their status by writing theoretical treatises and producing works of art intended for purely aesthetic contemplation which ultimately gave rise to the writing of art history and to the development of art collecting The study which is illustrated throughout and which draws on contemporary perspectives in the sociology of art will prompt the student of classical art to rethink fundamental assumptions on Greek art and its cultural and social implications BOOK JACKET Drama ,1922

Art, Representation, and Make-Believe Sonia Sedivy,2021-06-06 This is the first collection of essays focused on the many faceted work of Kendall L Walton Walton has shaped debate about the arts for the last 50 years He provides a comprehensive framework for understanding arts in terms of the human capacity of make believe that shows how different arts visual photographic musical literary or poetic can be explained in terms of complex structures of pretense perception imagining empathy and emotion His groundbreaking work has been taken beyond aesthetics to address foundational issues concerning linguistic and scientific representations for example about the nature of scientific modelling or to explain how much of what we say is quite different from the literal meanings of our words Contributions from a diverse group of philosophers probe Walton s detailed proposals and the themes for research they open The essays provide an overview of important debates that have Walton s work at their core This book will be of interest to scholars and graduate students working on aesthetics across the humanities as well as those interested in the topic of representation and its intersection with perception language science and metaphysics

Creativity and Aesthetic Theory Michael H. Mitias,2022-08-02 This book provides a critical systematic analytical and detailed analysis of creativity in art with special emphasis on the activity of artistic creation and the process of aesthetic perception Consciously dismissed from the realm of aesthetic discourse during the past century the book argues that the study of creativity is a primary task of aesthetic theory understanding its dynamics source and the conditions under which it happens is a necessary condition for an adequate analysis of the essential nature of the artistic and the aesthetic
