*This work concerned the high-throughput screening of short-segmented oligos, which, besides some specific features, resembles more a random library. Consequently, some selected sequences will be tested. Such a method is possible in principle, but it is not obvious that, despite the enormous effort, improvement in this respect, and the use of a suitable software, will be of any value.

Efforts to encourage youth participation have not been evenly distributed worldwide. Some youth organizations are as vibrant and successful as the well-known www.4youth.org organization that will feature the Youth Summit for the Americas. These local networks are not connected to some youth work and often remain marginal. Youth may become more involved in their own "youth work" and may have "youth organizations" grow and develop all over the world. However, it is not the Youth Summit that is doing this work. Youth work is still a local, place-based concept. Youth work can be defined as "youthwork.org". Youth Culture Summit is a global youth work summit.
