DESIGNING DESIGN

KENYA HARA

Li EDELKOORT

Precise and rigorous, he discusses design like a philosophy of life while continually shifting his awareness of the process, always seen as a work in progress somewhere, challenging and changing his own analysis. He is both the timely delivery boy of communication and the inventor of enhancement, wrestling and toying with acquiring knowledge and deleting excess in both disciplines. ... Although he believes that foretelling the future (which is my profession) is a facile occupation, he has, to my mind, a natural talent for it; he becomes an oracle when he speaks of our life on the 21st century and the task he has before us in vast and all-encompassing. text from the contribution

Kenya Hara is a complex man. He views the world through his many lenses of seeing, tasting, smelling, erasing, reappearing, and all forms of construction and deconstruction on Japan's preeminent art dhause at the beginning of the 21st century. His potential is boundless, yet if there is one boundary that he has not yet broken, it is the international appeal for his work. With this new book, the world now needs no benefit from decades of Hara's research into the unknown territory of new Japanese design. text from the contribution

Jasper MORRISON

Kenya's concentration on communicating the merits of MUJI has created a unique advertising campaign and the perfect counterpart to the company's philosophy. Since formulating the advertising concept he has completed a detailed census of existing products found in the products MUJI offers. The MUJI project is in great graphic work, but the great deal of Kenya Hara is not limited to the ordinary visual side of graphic design communication, but seems to reach on re-some natural level where we don't need to ask ourselves the meaning of his graphic messages; we just receive them text from the contribution

Naoto FUKASAWA

What Kenya Hara aspires to is not even comforting or restful representing some sort of movement. The quality he seeks sends out tangible feels. His real interest is to consider the feelings common to all human beings, i.e., those in touch to the subconscious. He excels in combining in us reach under the subconscious. He excels in combining in us reach under available format the particles of creation living all about us. He is extremely skilled at taking and tempering common creation—each of which glances individually—into a single glowing state of light. text from the contribution
