Derek Jarman's Garden Derek Jarman, 1996 Paradise haunts gardens writes Derek Jarman and it haunts mine Jarman's public image is that of a filmmaker of genius whose work dwelling on themes of sexuality and violence became a byword for controversy But the private man was the creator of his own garden paradise in an environment that many might think was more of a hell than a heaven in the flat bleak often desolate expanse of shingle that faces the nuclear power station in Dungeness Kent Jarman a passionate gardener from childhood combined his painter's eye his horticultural expertise and his ecological convictions to produce a landscape which combined the flints shells and driftwood of Dungeness sculptures made from stones old tools and found objects the area's indigenous plants and shrubs and flowers introduced by Jarman himself This book is Derek Jarman's own record of how this garden evolved from its earliest beginnings in 1986 to the last year of his life More than 150 photographs taken since 1991 by his friend and photographer Howard Sooley capture the garden at all its different stages and at every season of the year Photographs from all angles reveal the garden's complex geometric plan its magical stone circles and its beautiful and bizarre sculptures We also catch glimpses of Jarman's life in Dungeness walking weeding watering or just enjoying life Derek Jarman's Garden is the last book Jarman wrote Like the garden itself it remains as a fitting memorial to a brilliant and greatly loved artist who against all odds made a breathtakingly beautiful garden in the most inhospitable of places It will appeal to all those who are themselves practicing gardeners as well as to the legions of admirers of an extraordinary man even perverse experiences that will help us create a truly queer notion of ethics and aesthetics one that recasts sociality and sexuality place and finitude in ways suggested by the anonymity and itinerant lures of cruising Shifting our attention from artworks to the work that art does from subjectivity to becoming and from static space to taking place Ricco considers a variety of issues including the work of Doug Ischar Tom Burr and Derek Jarman and the minor architecture of sex clubs public restrooms and alleyways

Borderland Phil Hubbard, 2022-06-28 Over recent years the issues of Brexit COVID and the migrant crisis put Kent in the headlines like never before Images of asylum seekers on Kent beaches lorries queued on motorways and the crumbling white cliffs of Dover all spoke to national anxieties and were used to support ideas that severing ties with the EU was the best or worst thing the UK has ever done In this coastal driftwork Phil Hubbard an exiled man of Kent considers the past present and future of this corner of England alighting on a number of key sites which symbolise the changing relationship between the UK and its continental neighbours Moving from the geopolitics of the Channel Tunnel to the cultivation of oysters at Whitstable from Derek Jarman's feted cottage at Dungeness to the art fuelled gentrification of Margate Borderland bridges geography history and archaeology to pose important questions about the way that national identities emerge from contested local landscapes

Weather Architecture Jonathan Hill, 2013-06-17 Weather Architecture further extends Jonathan Hill's investigation of authorship by recognising the creativity of the weather At a time when environmental awareness is of growing relevance the overriding aim is to understand a history of architecture as a history of weather and thus to consider the weather as an architectural author that affects design construction and use in a creative dialogue with other authors such as the architect and user Environmental discussions in architecture tend to focus on the practical or the poetic but here they are considered together Rather than investigate architecture's relations to the weather in isolation they are integrated into a wider discussion of cultural and social influences on architecture The analysis of weather's effects on the design and experience of specific buildings and gardens is interwoven with a historical survey of changing attitudes to the weather in the arts sciences and society leading to a critical re-evaluation of contemporary responses to climate change
