Friedrich Froebel and English Education (RLE Edu K) Evelyn Lawrence, 2012-05-16 This collection of essays describes Froebel's life and the history of his influence on the education of young children in Britain. It also traces the religious roots of his philosophy and discusses his psychological and educational principles in the light of developments in these fields since his day.

The Philosophy of Primary Education (RLE Edu K) R Dearden, 2012-05-04 This volume provides a rigorous examination of theoretical concepts such as need, interest, growth, play, experience, activity, and self-expression. It also makes an important contribution towards getting a closely argued educational theory. In the first part of the book, the author establishes general aims and ends with suggestions as to what the curriculum ought to be. The second part is concerned with the procedures of learning and teaching appropriate to such a curriculum.

Living Powers (RLE Edu K) Peter Abbs, 2013-09-05 When originally published, this was the first book to offer a collective history of all the arts: Art, Drama, Dance, Music, Literature, and Film in the curriculum. It also offers a coherent framework for the teaching of arts, which is in line with the best current trends since the Gulbenkian Report of 1982. It insists that the arts, seen together, should be an essential part of the national curriculum.

Excerpt: The law of apperception led him to see the impossibility of giving a religious training at all unless the germs of religious feeling and thought were implanted in the child's life. He believed the three foundation elements in a religious life to be community, love, and life. The child's earliest feelings of community and love he would have developed in the loving family life, and its unconscious basis for the conscious revelation of active, progressive, evolving life he would lead it to gain from sympathetic contemplation of Nature. Speaking of the family he says: This feeling of community first unites the child with mother, father, brothers, and sisters, and resting on a higher spiritual unity to which later on is added the unmistakable discovery that father mother brothers sisters human beings in general feel and know themselves to be in community and unity with a higher principle with humanity with God this feeling of community is the very first germ of all true religious spirit of all genuine yearning for unhindered unification with the eternal with God Inasmuch as every separating tendency hinders pure human development man even in childhood refers everything to family life beholds everything through family life as is shown so clearly in childhood Pure human parental and filial relations are the key the first condition of that heavenly Divine fatherly and filial relation and life of a genuine Christian life in thought and action The comprehension of the purely spiritual human relations of the true parental and filial relations furnishes the only key for the recognition and apprehension of the relations of God to man and of man to God As long as mothers do not know how to administer the The Educational Ideas of Froebel (Classic Reprint) Jessie White,2015-07-01 Excerpt from The Educational Ideas of Froebel The literature about Froebel is already extensive and most of Froebel sown writings are accessible to all But they need some kind of introduction and in this review of Froebel s chief works I have particularly devoted myself to those ideas of his which have proved most fruitful as well as to those which give the key to his characteristic way of looking at things Every man however great his genius is after all the product of his times and to some extent of his circumstances It would be sheer waste of labour to study the ideas of a man like Froebel without at the same time trying to form as vivid a picture as possible of the circumstances amid which he tried to realise his ideas After some consideration I came to the conclusion that a chronological order in treating Froebel s ideas was better than a logical one In his life we have first the long preparation period which may be said to have lasted up to the opening of his school at Keilhau in 1817 then his constructive period from 1817 to 1831 when he went to Switzerland which produced his Education of Man and his plan for the Helba Institution as well as the earlier writings to which reference is made in the text and lastly his Kindergarten period in which he applied the principles laid down in his constructive period to the education of very young children About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works English Education Isaac Sharpless,1905
