The Invisible Hand in Popular Culture, Paul Arthur Cantor, 2012-11-05 Popular culture often champions freedom as the fundamentally American way of life and celebrates the virtues of independence and self-reliance. But film and television have also explored the tension between freedom and other core values such as order and political stability. What may look like healthy, productive and creative freedom from one point of view may look like chaos, anarchy and a source of destructive conflict from another. Film and television continually pose the question: Can Americans deal with their problems on their own or must they rely on political elites to manage their lives? In this groundbreaking work, Paul A. Cantor explores the ways in which television shows such as Star Trek The X Files South Park and Deadwood and films such as The Aviator and Mars Attacks have portrayed both top down and bottom up models of order Drawing on the works of John Locke Adam Smith Alexis de Tocqueville and other proponents of freedom Cantor contrasts the classical liberal vision of America particularly its emphasis on the virtues of spontaneous order with the Marxist understanding of the culture industry and the Hobbesian model of absolute state control The Invisible Hand in Popular Culture concludes with a discussion of the impact of 9 11 on film and television and the new anxieties emerging in contemporary alien invasion narratives the fear of a global technocracy that seeks to destroy the nuclear family religious faith local government and other traditional bulwarks against the absolute state

Adapting Television and Literature Blythe Worthy, Paul Sheehan, 2024-04-24 Adapting Television and Literature is an incisive collection of essays that explores the growing sub-category of television adaptations of literature and poetics. Each chapter questions inflexible notions of film, literature, and adaptation, intertext, focusing judiciously on emergent or overlooked media and literary forms. These lines of enquiry embrace texts both within and beyond adaptation, proper to reveal the complex relationships between literary works, television adaptations, and related dialogues of textual interconnectivity. Adapting Television and Literature proposes, in particular, a re-seeing of four genres pivotal to television and its history: caustic comedy, which claims for itself more freedoms than other forms of scripted television; auteurist outlaw drama; an offbeat niche genre that aligns a fixation on lawbreakers with issues of creative control; young adult reinventions that vitalise this popular yet under-examined area of television studies; and transcultural exchanges which highlight adaptations beyond the white Anglo-American programming that dominates peak TV. Through these genres, Adapting Television and Literature examines the creative resources of adaptation, plotting future paths for enquiries into television, literature, and transmedial storytelling.
