Frits Philips 45 Jaar Met Philips:

45 jaar met Philips Leo Ott, 1976 45 Years with Philips Frits Philips, 1978 Operation Oyster World War II's Forgotten Raid Kees Rijken, Paul Schepers, Arthur G. Thorning, 2014-08-15 Operation Oyster was carried out on the 6th December 1942 by 2 Group RAF. Considered to be a notable success for the allies, it cost the Germans an estimated six months of lost production time at a critical point in the conflict. It is arguable according to the authors that the operation was in fact rather more significant than Operation Chastise, the Dambuster raid, while accepting that was a remarkable feat of arms. Operation Oyster struck at the very heart of what Churchill termed the wizard war against German radio navigational technology by attacking a central hub of activity, the Philips Radio Works in Eindhoven, The Netherlands. The development of electronics in WWII was the most significant technical aspect of weaponry over the course of the conflict. On both sides, there were great advances in radar and communications, which at that time depended on the wide-scale use of high-frequency radio valves. Few companies had the technology to produce these, but the leading one in Europe was Philips in Eindhoven. Thus, it was determined that Philips was the most important target. Ninety-three allied aircraft took part, and a total of fourteen were lost. But the result in terms of damages to the enemy was considerable, hindering the German war effort significantly and consequently aiding the allies. Despite these facts, however, the story of the raid has been underreported, and the efforts of the aircrew who took part have been little recognized. By comparison, the Dambuster raid, which came six months later, has entered into folklore. Here, for the first time, the overlooked Oyster raid is afforded the attention it deserves. Anton Philips 1874-1951 Marcel Metze, 2012-03-05 In 1895, at the age of 21, Anton Philips left HBS and went on a stage to the Amsterdam and London stock exchanges to help his older brother Gerard with the sale of incandescent lamps. In two decades, he grew up to become a top entrepreneur in the Netherlands and of world renown, thanks to his enormous drive, charm, entrepreneurial blood, strategic talent, and diligence. He led the company through the First World War, the crash of 1929, the recession of the thirties, and the Second World War, and built it into a global enterprise. Under the leadership of research journalist Marcel Metze, who delved into the archives of Philips Electronics and the Philips family, and unearthed many hundreds of previously unpublished letters and documents, on the basis of which he wrote a biography of this Dutch tycoon. Metze wrote a gripping, vivid, and unflinching biography that brings the reader very close to the man and his work. Anton Philips was not a risk-taker and he built his kingdom not on risky financings. But as Metze shows, he was also charming and hardworking; he was both a man and a leader. Anton Philips was not a thinker but a doer. And always from the drive to succeed, they will know who they are for themselves. Expanding Class Don Kalb, 1997 A unique study of economic change, class, and social experience in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries in the industrial Netherlands.
