This volume examines the school to prison pipeline a concept that has received growing attention over the past 10 15 years in the United States The pipeline refers to a number of interrelated concepts and activities that most often include the criminalization of students and student behavior the police like state found in many schools throughout the country and the introduction of youth into the criminal justice system at an early age The school to prison pipeline negatively and disproportionately affects communities of color throughout the United States particularly in urban areas Given the demographic composition of public schools in the United States the nature of student performance in schools over the past 50 years the manifestation of school to prison pipeline approaches pervasive throughout the country and the world and the growing incarceration rates for youth this volume explores this issue from the sociological criminological and educational perspectives Understanding Dismantling and Disrupting the Prison to School Pipeline has contributions from scholars and practitioners who work in the fields of sociology counseling criminal justice and who are working to dismantle the pipeline While the academic conversation has consistently called the pipeline school to prison including the framing of many chapters in this book the economic and market forces driving the prison industrial complex urge us to consider reframing the pipeline as one working from prison to school This volume points toward the tensions between efforts to articulate values of democratic education and schooling against practices that criminalize youth and engage students in reductionist and legalistic manners

School, Not Jail Peter Williamson, Deborah Appleman, 2021 Arguing that the school to prison pipeline is one of the most urgent educational issues of our time this volume seeks to 1 examine how and why increasing numbers of students disproportionately youth of color are being taken from our schools into our prisons and 2 consider what school based educators can do to disrupt this flow and dismantle the school to prison pipeline using examples drawn from both schools and prisons Incorporating perspectives from both ends of the pipeline the volume provides specific strategies on curriculum pedagogy and disciplinary practices that can help redirect our collective efforts from carceral practices to education that will be valuable for all educators in keeping students in school and out of prison

Promises and Possibilities Kelisa Wing, 2018-05-03 In many of our schools students arrive for an education but leave with a record As a result of the students who are being arrested as opposed to being sent to the principal s office the school to prison pipeline has become a serious issue across our nation Many students who receive a criminal record from school offenses have their future dreams jeopardized and the suspensions from school contribute to high dropout rates Kelisa Wing is a product of inner city schools and has experienced the belief gap first hand As a public speaker writer and advocate for eliminating the school to prison pipeline it is her personal mission to raise awareness on this serious issue and the need to eliminate the pipeline Promises and Possibilities offers practical ways to deconstruct the pipeline from home to the classroom while offering anecdotes about equity from respected educators and State Teachers of the Year from across the country Promises and Possibilities challenges educators to choose restoration over criminalization so that we can dismantle the pipeline once and for all

Understanding, Dismantling, and Disrupting the Prison-to-school Pipeline Kenneth J. Fasching-Varner, Lori Latrice Martin, Roland W. Mitchell, Karen P. Bennett-Haron, Arash Daneshzadeh, 2017 This volume provides a concentrated and powerful dialog about the nexus between schools prisons and the free market economy where youth are on fast tracks from schools to prisons

Prelude to Prison Marsha Weissman, 2015-01-08 By the close of the twentieth century the United States became known for its reliance on incarceration as the chief means of social control particularly in poor communities of color The carceral state has been extended into the public school system in these communities in what has become known as the school to prison pipeline Through interviews with young people suspended from school Weissman examines the impact of zero tolerance and other harsh disciplinary approaches that have transformed schools into penal like institutions In their own words students describe their lives the challenges they face and their efforts to overcome those challenges Unlike other studies this book illuminates the students perspectives on what happens when the educational system excludes them from regular school Weissman draws attention to research findings that suggest punitive disciplinary policies and practices resemble criminal justice strategies of arrest trial sentence and imprisonment She demonstrates how harsh school discipline prepares young people from poor communities of color for their place in the carceral state An invaluable resource for policy makers Prelude to Prison presents recommendations for policy practice and political change that have the potential to dismantle the school to prison pipeline

Disrupting the School-to-Prison Pipeline Sofia Bahena, North Cooc, Rachel Currie-Rubin, Paul Kuttner, Monica Ng, 2012-12-01 A trenchant and wide ranging look at this alarming national trend Disrupting the School to Prison Pipeline is unsparing in its account of the problem while pointing in the direction of meaningful and much needed reforms The school to prison pipeline has received much attention in the education world over the past few years A fast growing and disturbing development it describes a range of circumstances whereby children are funneled out of public schools and into the juvenile and criminal justice systems Scholars educators parents students and organizers across the country have pointed to this shocking trend insisting that it be identified and understood and that it be addressed as an urgent matter by the larger community This new volume from the Harvard Educational Review features essays from scholars educators students and community activists who are working to disrupt reverse and redirect the pipeline Alongside these authors are contributions from the people most affected youth and adults who have been incarcerated or whose lives have been shaped by the school to prison pipeline Through stories essays and poems these individuals add to the book s comprehensive portrait of how our education and justice systems function and how they fail to serve the interests of many young people and Incarceration Erica R. Meiners, Maisha T. Winn, 2014-07-16 The United States of America is in possession of the largest prison population in the world with 2.3 million people currently behind bars. This number is predominantly and disproportionately made up of communities of colour and poverty. Between 1987 and 2007, the U.S. prison population tripled, the direct result of various tough on crime public policies. Organizers and scholars use the term prison industrial complex (PIC) to name the structure that encompasses the expanding economic and political contexts of the detention and corrections industry in the USA. The PIC is a network that sutures capital, communities, and the State to a permanent punishment economy. The term the PIC aims to capture the range of material and ideological forces that shape the growth of detention, the political and lobbying power of the corrections officers' unions, the framing of prisons and jails as a growth industry in the context of deindustrialization, the production and sales of technology and security required to maintain and expand the state of incarceration, and the naturalization of isolation as a logical response to harm. Education and Incarceration highlights the significance of centering agency and autonomy and documents scholars who work to be accountable to justice movements and communities, not simply to academic disciplines or to research. Additionally, as emerging scholars committed to challenging the PIC, these authors struggle to build multi-layered analytic and material tools for resistance within and beyond the walls of schools, jails, and prisons. This book provides snapshots of practices in motion: activist scholars working to engage to be accountable to families, communities, and larger justice movements; and to build abolition democracies. This book was originally published as a special issue of Race, Ethnicity and Education.

The School-to-Prison Pipeline Nancy A. Heitzeg, 2016-04-11 School to prison pipeline: education on lockdown. School to prison pipeline: education, race, and social control. School to prison pipeline: segregated schools, sociopolitical shifts, and education under siege. School to prison pipeline: the context of social control. School to prison pipeline and racialized control in the era of color blindness. School to prison pipeline and the prison industrial complex: profit, race, and the prison track. School to prison pipeline and the medical industrial complex: race and the double standards of diagnosis. School to prison pipeline: punitive policies and transformative alternatives. Criminalized education: schoolhouse as jailhouse. Education not incarceration: ending the school to prison pipeline.

System Failure: Policy and Practice in the School-to-Prison Pipeline Patricia Burch, 2022-03-30 SYSTEM FAILURE provides a framework for understanding the ways in which education policy across organizational settings contributes to the school to prison pipeline as documented in the literature and as observed by authors in empirical studies of justice involved youth in regular public schools, juvenile court schools, probation settings, and alternative schools. Burch and contributors argue that education policy fails low income justice involved youth in three major ways: maintaining silence around issues of structural racism and civil rights, marginalizing youth voice and culture and language, focusing on schools or the criminal justice system, and overlooking intermediate settings including the role of for-profit and not-for-profit education companies. While the problem of the school to prison pipeline has been well documented, the book adds critical detail and description of a policy process that tolerates the school to prison pipeline and stalls efforts to abolish it The book is intended for educators students policymakers and practitioners interested in a comprehensive introduction to the policy issues as well as advocates doing serious work on the issues The Prison School Lizbet Simmons,2017 Title Copyright Contents Acknowledgments Introduction 1 Public Schools in a Punitive Era 2 The At Risk Youth Industry 3 Undereducated and Overcriminalized in New Orleans 4 The Prison School Conclusion Appendix Notes References Index Right to Be Hostile Erica R. Meiners,2010-11-01 In Right to be Hostile scholar and activist Erica Meiners offers concrete examples and new insights into the school to prison pipeline phenomenon showing how disciplinary regulations pedagogy pop culture and more not only implicitly advance but actually normalize an expectation of incarceration for urban youth Analyzed through a framework of an expanding incarceration nation Meiners demonstrates how educational practices that disproportionately target youth of color become linked directly to practices of racial profiling that are endemic in state structures As early as preschool such educational policies and practices disqualify increasing numbers of students of color as they are funneled through schools as under educated unemployable dangerous and in need of surveillance and containment By linking schools to prisons Meiners asks researchers activists and educators to consider not just how our schools physical structures resemble prisons metal detectors or school uniforms but the tentacles in policies practices and informal knowledge that support naturalize and extend relationships between incarceration and schools Understanding how and why prison expansion is possible necessitates connecting schools to prisons and the criminal justice system and redefining what counts as educational policy
