MacMillan, Frank Shapiro, 2017-03-20 This work represents the definitive account of the Jewish community in central Africa. It tells the story of the coming of the first Jews to the area in the late 19th century, the heyday of the Jewish community in the mid 20th century and its decline since Zambian independence. Dealing primarily with the Jewish traders in Zambia who flourished in the face of both anti-Semitism and their own acute social dislocation, Macmillan explores a number of interrelated topics: the colonial office discussions about Jewish immigration in the 1930s, the attempts to settle refugees in Africa by both pro and anti-Semites, Jewish religious life in the region and the remarkable cultural and professional role played by the Jewish settlers. Setting these issues in the context of a general history of southern and central Africa, this book constitutes a major contribution to our understanding of the economic history of the entire region. It will be of interest to both historians of Africa and anyone concerned with economic development, identity and immigrant communities. Shinners, Dissos and Dissenters: Irish republican media activism since the Good Friday Agreement Paddy Hoey, 2018-01-17 Shinners, Dissos and Dissenters is a long term analysis of the development of Irish republican media activism since 1998 and the tumultuous years that followed the end of the Troubles. It is the first in depth analysis of the newspapers, magazines and online spaces in which strands of Irish republicanism developed and were articulated in a period in which schism and dissent underscored a return to violence for dissidents. Based on an analysis of Irish republican media outlets as well as interviews with the key activists that produced them, this book provides a compelling snapshot of a political ideology in transition as it is moulded by the forces of the Peace Process and often violent internal ideological schism that threatened a return to the bad old days of the Troubles. Peace and Ethnic Identity in Northern Ireland Henry Jarrett, 2017-10-16 Consociational power sharing is often perceived to be the method of conflict management that is most likely to succeed in deeply divided societies. The case of Northern Ireland in particular is heralded by many as a consociational success story. Since the signing of the Good Friday Belfast Agreement in 1998, significant conflict transformation has taken place in the form of a considerable reduction in levels of violence and the establishment of power sharing between unionists and nationalists. This book looks at what consociational power sharing achieves after its implementation, specifically whether it can work to overcome existing identities in divided societies or whether it simply freezes divisions. It argues that if consociational power sharing is facilitating a move towards a genuinely shared society, this would be demonstrated in the focus of the election campaigns of Northern Ireland's political parties, which would be almost exclusively based around socio-economic issues affecting the whole population rather than narrow single identity concerns. However, the book claims that on the whole, this has not been realised. Although election campaigns are today less strident than they were in the pre-1998 era, it remains the case that they usually foreground single identity symbolism as it is this that resonates with voters. Whilst consociational power sharing has been very successful in reducing levels of violent conflict and facilitating elite level cooperation between unionists and nationalists, it has been much less successful in reducing divisions within wider society to facilitate a genuinely shared

Northern Irish identity By establishing an important middle ground between consociational proponents and critics this research will be of significant interest to students and scholars of ethnic politics political sociology conflict management and divided societies more generally Market World and Chronicle ,1912 The Search for Justice Kumari Jayawardena,Kishali Pinto-Jayawardena,2016-11-21 The Sexual Violence and Impunity in South Asia research project coordinated by Zubaan and supported by the International Development Research Centre brings together for the first time in the region a vast body of knowledge on this important yet silenced subject Six country volumes one each on Bangladesh Nepal Pakistan Sri Lanka and two on India as well as two standalone volumes comprising over fifty research papers and two book length studies detail the histories of sexual violence and look at the systemic institutional societal individual and community structures that work together to perpetuate impunity for perpetrators The essays in this volume examine history and contemporary politics to understand the root causes of sexual violence in Sri Lanka They look at the polarization created around ethnic and linguistic identities during the three decades of ethnic conflict but also scrutinize the routine violence of communities towards their own women in daily life The authors argue that in this transitional post war phase Sri Lankan women must not only be treated as victims but as agents of change The writers highlight a hitherto unaddressed aspect of sexual violence that of the structures that enable impunity on the part of perpetrators be they security personnel and paramilitary forces members of armed rebel groups gangs local politicians and police or ordinary citizens including close family members They demonstrate how impunity for perpetrators is both a failure of the formal justice process and a product of individual community and social conditions and indeed the choices that victims and families make that promote silence over truth At the end of more than a quarter century of conflict that has left some 100 000 dead 50 000 women headed households struggling to survive as well as countless victims and survivors of sexual violence the calls for justice can no longer be ignored The Regulation of the Legal Profession in Ireland Maeve Hosier,2014-08-17 The Regulation of the Legal Profession in Ireland is a new and insightful exploration of history controversy and reform relating to the Irish legal system During recent legislative debate over a professional reform bill Alan Shatter then the Minister of Justice in Ireland publicly called this study in its earlier form as a dissertation marvellous and stated that it should be compulsory reading for us all He noted that the thesis sets out the history of the legal profession and how it evolved It evolved continually until approximately 1870 and then went into paralysis and nothing has changed since It is extraordinarily curious that people think the world stopped in 1870 Professor Laurent Pech formerly of the School of Law at NUI Galway and now Head of the Law Department at Middlesex University London has stated that this study makes a decisive contribution to the on going scholarly and policy debates on this issue by evaluating the present regulatory framework and offering a number of suggestions to improve it in a context of increasing transnationalisation of the market for legal services He added that Hosier s innovative approach to the problem of lawyers misconduct is in particular worth noting This aspect of her work has the
