

Narrative Inquiry: a relational methodology Clandinin & Connelly

What is a narrative?

A narrative is retelling an event in a sequence of written or spoken words. The narrative is not the story itself but rather the telling of the story. While a story is a sequence of events, a narrative recounts those events, and depending on the audience, the narrator may leave some events out as they are, from their perspective, insignificant, and maybe highlighting others. This is what Narrative Inquiry explores - the essence of the personal experience from the event.

Narrative sequence-

Cardiac Arrest

Normality- Life as "normal" partners, work and social normalities

Event- a Cardiac Arrest (CA) interrupts normal life, introduction to hospital, health professionals, medication, and realisation of closeness to death.

Return back to a New Normal Life- possible same as before CA, but different.

Narrative is a way for people to express themselves and find meaning and coherence in a new reality
