Film Theory An Introduction Through The Senses:

Film Theory Thomas Elsaesser, Malte Hagener, 2010 What is the relationship between the cinema and the spectator Renowned film scholars Thomas Elsaesser and Malte Hagener use this central question for film theory in order to guide students through all of the major film theories from the classical period to today in this brief insightful and engaging book Every kind of cinema and every kind of film theory presupposes an ideal spectator and then imagines a certain relationship between the mind and body of that spectator and the screen Using seven distinctive configurations of spectator and screen that move from exterior to interior relationships the authors retrace the most important stages of film theory from the 1920s onwards with special attention paid to theories since 1945 from neo realist and modernist theories to psychoanalytic apparatus phenomenological and cognitivist theories while also offering an incisive extension of film theory through the senses into the digital age Each chapter opens with a paradigmatic scene from a well known film to introduce key concepts and outlines the major schools of thought and theorists attached to a particular film theory The films discussed combine classics of cinema such as Rear Window and The Searchers with contemporary films including Donnie Darko and Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind Film stills throughout provide a visual key to unlock challenging theoretical concepts and the mass production of the senses the cinema as the exploitation of the body and the commodification of the senses the cinema as a public space to adapt the body and educate the senses to the demands of society By broadening our understanding of spectatorship Elsaesser and Wedel are able to provide an account of film history that more easily accommodates the new forms that the cinematic experience is taking in the 21st century The advanced undergraduate will find this book to be an excellent introduction to both major media theorists like McLuhan and Kracauer and also film history more generally
