Financing Africa's Cities Africa Development Forum:

Financing Africa's Cities Thierry Paulais, 2012-07-05 This volume addresses the issues of financing urban growth of the African continent which has the highest urban growth rate on the planet in the next decades Considerable investment will be needed to sustain this level of growth and to clear up accumulated backlogs At the same time decentralization has resulted in increased responsibilities for local government but in most cases institutional reforms were carried out without the transfer of a sufficient level of resources and local capacities in governance and project management are weak Which mechanisms will finance these extensive needs and how will African local governments meet these needs Specifics on how to finance African cities have not been studied The actual scale of this market has not been fully grasped A systemic approach to this market is difficult because of its diversity country size institutional context characteristics of urban network availability of capital market currency etc and a lack of data Donors assistance methods in the sector are disparate marked by disputes between different schools of thought special purpose vehicles created by donors operate according to a variety of methods and with wide ranging and sparsely disseminated results What is the best way to transform these systems often antiquated in many respects into modern financing systems that facilitate access to domestic markets mobilize local savings and reinforce local government autonomy There is no single answer to this question in regard to such a variety of institutional and economic contexts The main objective of the study is to clarify the debates and to enlighten the choices of African decision makers at local and national level

Urban Risk Assessments Thierry Paulais, 2012-06-22 This book presents a framework the Urban Risk Assessment for assessing disaster and climate risk in cities which is intended to assist in decision making urban planning and designing risk management programs The approach seeks to strengthen coherence and consensus within and across cities in understanding and planning for risk from natural disasters and climate change The target audience for this book includes policy makers urban practitioners and technical staff and international organizations The Urban Risk Assessment is a flexible approach based on three reinforcing pillars that collectively contribute to the understanding of urban risk a hazard impact assessment an institutional assessment and a socioeconomic assessment The URA is designed to allow flexibility in how it is applied dependent on available financial resources available data relating to hazards and its population and institutional capacity of a given city Based on the identified needs and priorities city governments can select the most appropriate level of risk assessment Chapters 1 and 2 of the book are aimed at policy makers with information on why and how to invest in measures that strengthen the understanding of urban risk Chapter 1 provides background information on the growing importance of disaster and climate risk management strategies at the city level and Chapter 2 provides guidance on how to operationalize and mainstream the Urban Risk Assessment with ongoing urban management and development activities Chapters 3 and 4 are aimed at practitioners and provide details on the conceptual approach components uses and monitoring requirements for carrying out an Urban Risk Assessment

Housing Market Dynamics in Africa El-hadj M.

Bah, Issa Faye, Zekebweliwai F. Geh, 2018-03-12 This open access book utilizes new data to thoroughly analyze the main factors currently shaping the African housing market. Some of these factors include the supply and demand for housing finance, land tenure security issues, construction cost conundrum, infrastructure provision, and low cost housing alternatives. Through detailed analysis, the authors investigate the political economy surrounding the continent's housing market and the constraints that behind the scenes policy makers need to address in their attempts to provide affordable housing for the majority in need. With Africa's urban population growing rapidly, this study highlights how broad demographic shifts and rapid urbanization are placing enormous pressure on the limited infrastructure in many cities and stretching the economic and social fabric of municipalities to their breaking point. But beyond providing a snapshot of the present conditions of the African housing market, the book offers recommendations and actionable measures for policy makers and other stakeholders on how best to provide affordable housing and alleviate Africa's housing deficit. This work will be of particular interest to practitioners, non-governmental organizations, private sector actors, students, and researchers of economic policy, international development, and urban development.

African Economic Outlook 2015: Regional Development and Spatial Inclusion African Development Bank, OECD, United Nations Development Programme, 2015-05-25 The African Economic Outlook 2015 analyses Africa's growing role in the world economy and predicts the continent's two year prospects in crucial areas: macroeconomics, financing, trade policies, and regional integration, human development and governance.

Migrants, Markets, and Mayors Luc Christiaensen, Nancy Lozano-Gracia, 2024-01-12 Research on migration and urban development in Africa has primarily focused on larger cities and rural to urban migration. However, 97 percent of Africa's urban centers have fewer than 300,000 inhabitants, and a sizable share of urban migrants come from other urban areas. A more holistic and dynamic perspective incorporating migration flows along the full urban hierarchy, as well as urban urban migrants, is needed to better understand and leverage migration for urban development.

Migrants, Markets, and Mayors: Rising above the Employment Challenge in Africa's Secondary Cities draws on demographic data, research literature, key informant interviews, and empirical research to better understand how migrants in Africa's secondary cities fare in urban labor markets, how they affect aggregate urban productivity, and how mayors can leverage migrants' potential to the benefit of all. It explores these questions across countries and four urban case settings: Jijiga in Ethiopia, Jinja in Uganda, and Jendouba and Kairouan in Tunisia. Although mayors in secondary cities often see migrants as a burden to their cities' labor markets and a threat to development, the report finds that migrants contribute increasingly less to urban population growth and that they usually strengthen the resident labor force. The report also finds that labor market outcomes for migrants are at least as good as those for nonmigrants. Africa's secondary cities are well placed to leverage migration, but evidence-based policies are needed to manage the growth and development of land and labor markets. The report reviews policy options that mayors can take to strengthen the financial, technical, and planning capacity of secondary cities and better leverage migration to benefit migrants.

and nonmigrants alike Much of the literature on migration to cities examines migration in a nonspatial fashion or focuses on rural urban migration to the largest most visible cities This volume fills a gap by focusing on migration to secondary cities coming up with a compelling set of facts Overall the volume is very well done and sets a benchmark for future research J

Securing Africa's Land for Shared Prosperity Frank F. K. Byamugisha, 2013-06-05 Despite being heavily endowed with land and other natural resources Sub Saharan Africa has the highest poverty rate in the world A key to leveraging its land and natural resources to eradicate poverty is improving land governance the subject of this book centered on a ten point program to scale up land policy reforms and investments

Facing Forward Sajitha Bashir, Marlaine Lockheed, Elizabeth Ninan, Jee-Peng Tan, 2018-09-20 Facing Forward lays out a range of policy and implementation actions that are needed for countries in Sub Saharan Africa to meet the challenge of improving learning while expanding access and completion of basic education for all The book underscores the importance of aligning the education system to be relentlessly focused on learning outcomes and to ensuring that all children have access to good schools good learning materials and good teachers It is unique in characterizing countries according to the challenges they faced in the 1990s and the educational progress they have made over the past 25 years allowing countries in the region to learn from each other The authors review the global literature and add to it by their extensive new analyses of multiple datasets from more than three dozen countries in the region they integrate findings about what affects children's learning their access to schooling and progress through basic education The book draws lessons from the region and for the region about what works and what is needed to better implement what is known to have worked The book examines four areas to help countries better align their systems to improve learning 1 completing the unfinished agenda of reaching universal basic education with quality 2 ensuring effective management and support of teachers 3 targeting spending priorities and budget processes on improving quality and 4 closing the institutional capacity gap It concludes with an assessment of how future educational progress may be affected by projected fertility rates and economic growth

Africa's Demographic Transition David Canning, Sangeeta Raja, Abdo S. Yazbeck, 2015-10-22 Africa is poised on the edge of a potential takeoff to sustained economic growth This takeoff can be abetted by a demographic dividend from the changes in population age structure Declines in child mortality followed by declines in fertility produce a bulge generation and a large number of working age people giving a boost to the economy In the short run lower fertility leads to lower youth dependency rates and greater female labor force participation outside the home Smaller family sizes also mean more resources to invest in the health and education per child boosting worker productivity In the long run increased life spans from health improvements mean that this large high earning cohort will also want to save for retirement creating higher savings and investments leading to further productivity gains Two things are required for the demographic dividend to generate an African economic takeoff The first is to speed up the fertility decline that is currently slow or stalled in many countries The second is economic policies that take advantage of the opportunity offered by demography While demographic change can produce more and high quality workers this potential workforce needs to be productively employed if Africa is to reap the dividend However once underway the relationship between demographic change and human development works in both directions creating a virtuous cycle that can accelerate fertility decline social development and economic growth Empirical evidence points to three key factors for speeding the fertility transition child health female education and women s empowerment particularly through access to family planning Harnessing the dividend requires job creation for the large youth cohorts entering working age and encouraging foreign investment until domestic savings and investment increase The appropriate mix of policies in each country depends on their stage of the demographic transition

Urban Labor Markets in Sub-Saharan Africa Philippe De Vreyer, Francois Roubaud, 2013-06-07 Although labor is usually the unique asset upon which poor people can make a living little is known about the functioning of labor markets in Sub Saharan Africa The purpose of this volume is to contribute to the building of knowledge in this area In this book the authors use a unique set of identical and simultaneous labor force surveys conducted in seven capitals of Western Africa as well as in some other African countries Cameroon Madagascar Democratic Republic of Congo in the 2000s They present innovative and original results on how people are faring in these labour markets using up to date econometric and statistical methods Because so little is known about labor markets in the region each chapter starts with detailed descriptive statistics that aim to shed light onto specific aspects of African urban labor markets Comparisons between the ten cities are systematically carried out Descriptive sections are followed by in depth analyses on various issues The book is divided into four parts that examine 13 topics Part I presents the main stylised facts which are investigated further in a more analytical way throughout the volume Part II focuses on job quality and labor market conditions such as unemployment and underemployment vulnerability and job satisfaction Part III explores the many dimensions of labor market inequalities through various lenses such as returns on education segmentation life cycle inequality with a particular focus on old age inter generational mobility time related inequality and gender and ethnic earnings discrimination Part IV addresses some key coping mechanisms and private responses with a focus on migration and child labor The book concludes with recommendations for future research

Tourism in Africa Iain Christie,Eneida Fernandes,Hannah Messerli,Louise Twining-Ward,2014-06-19 This book presents how tourism initiates economic development and how constraints to the growth of tourism in Sub Saharan Africa can be addressed With 24 case studies that illustrate tourism development it reveals that despite destination challenges the basic elements needed to initialize or intensify success are applicable across the region

Mining in Africa Punam Chuhan-Pole,Andrew L. Dabalen,Bryan Christopher Land,2017-02-16 This study focuses on the local and regional impact of large scale gold mining in Africa in the context of a mineral boom in the region since 2000 It contributes to filling a gap in the literature on the welfare effects of mineral resources which until now has concentrated more on the national or macroeconomic impacts Economists have long been intrigued by the paradox that a rich endowment of natural resources may retard economic performance particularly in the case of mineral exporting developing countries Studies of this phenomenon known as the resource curse examine the economy wide consequences of mineral exports Africa s resource boom has lifted growth but has been less successful in improving people s welfare Yet much of the focus in academic and policy circles has been on appropriate management of the macro fiscal and governance risks that have historically undermined development outcomes This study focuses instead on the fortune of local communities where resources are located It aims to better inform public policy and corporate behavior on the welfare of communities in Africa in which the extraction of resources takes place

All Hands On Deck Emmanuel Skoufias,Katja Vinha,Ryoko Sato,2019-04-01 In Sub Saharan Africa the scale of undernutrition is staggering 58 million children under the age of five are too short for their age stunted and 14 million weigh too little for their height wasted Poor diets in terms of diversity quality and quantity combined with illness and poor water and sanitation facilities are linked with deficiencies of micronutrients such as iodine vitamin A and iron associated with growth development and immune function In the short term inequities in access to the determinants of nutrition increase the incidence of undernutrition and diarrheal disease In the long term the chronic undernutrition of children has important consequences for individuals and societies a high risk of stunting impaired cognitive development lower school attendance rates reduced human capital attainment and a higher risk of chronic disease and health problems in adulthood Inequities in access to services early in life contribute to the intergenerational transmission of poverty Recent World Bank estimates suggest that the income penalty a country incurs for not having eliminated stunting when today s workers were children is about 9 10 percent of gross domestic product per capita in Sub Saharan Africa Much of the effort to date has focused on the costing financing and impact of nutrition specific interventions delivered mainly through the health sector to reach the global nutrition targets for stunting anemia and breastfeeding and interventions for treating wasting. However, the determinants of undernutrition are multisectoral and the solution to undernutrition requires multisectoral approaches. An acceleration of the progress to reduce stunting in Sub-Saharan Africa requires engaging additional sectors such as agriculture, education, social protection, and water sanitation and hygiene (WASH) to improve nutrition. This book lays the groundwork for more effective multisectoral action by analyzing and generating empirical evidence to inform the joint targeting of nutrition-sensitive interventions. Using information from 33 recent Demographic and Health Surveys (DHS), measures are constructed to capture a child's access to food security, care practices, health care, and WASH to identify gaps in access among different socioeconomic groups and to relate access to these nutrition drivers to nutrition outcomes. All Hands on Deck: Reducing Stunting through Multisectoral Efforts in Sub-Saharan Africa addresses three main questions: Do children have inadequate access to the underlying determinants of nutrition? What is the association between stunting and inadequate food care practices, health, and WASH access? Can the sectors that have the greatest impact on stunting be identified? This book provides country authorities with a holistic picture of the gaps in access to the drivers of nutrition within countries to assist them in the formulation of a more informed, evidence-based and balanced multisectoral strategy against undernutrition.

Reaping Richer Returns Aparajita Goyal, John Nash, 2017-03-10 Enhancing the productivity of agriculture is vital for Sub-Saharan Africa's economic future and is one of the most important tools to end extreme poverty and boost shared prosperity in the region. How governments elect to spend public resources has significant development impact in this regard. Choosing to catalyze a shift toward more effective, efficient, and climate-resilient public spending in agriculture can accelerate change and unleash growth. Not only does agricultural public spending in Sub-Saharan Africa lag behind other developing regions, but its impact is vitiated by subsidy programs and transfers that tend to benefit elites to the detriment of poor people and the agricultural sector itself. Shortcomings in the budgeting processes also reduce spending effectiveness. In light of this scenario, addressing the quality of public spending and the efficiency of resource use becomes even more important than addressing only the level of spending. Improvements in the policy environment, better institutions, and investments in rural public goods positively affect agricultural productivity. These combined with smarter use of public funds have helped lay the foundations for agricultural productivity growth around the world, resulting in a wealth of important lessons from which African policy makers and development practitioners can draw. Reaping Richer Returns: Public Spending Priorities for African Agriculture Productivity Growth will be of particular interest to policy makers, development practitioners, and academics. The rigorous analysis presented in this book provides options for reform with a view to boosting the productivity of African agriculture and eventually increasing development impact. South Africa and the World Mills Soko, 2021-09-27 Over the past 20 years, the global political economy has experienced its most profound shifts since the onset of the industrial revolution. In South Africa and the World, Mills Soko reflects on some of the salient issues that have pervaded public discourse.

during this time analysing them within the context of the contemporary South African political economy and of the country's position in the world. Arranged thematically, the essays were all written during a defining period in recent history, a period that has witnessed among others the accession of China to the WTO, the 9/11 terrorist attacks on the US, the invention of the iPad, the birth of Facebook, the 2008/9 global financial crisis, Brexit, and the global coronavirus pandemic which began at the end of 2019. The turbulent multipolar world demands visionary political and economic leadership supported by institutions well attuned to contemporary conditions. Such leadership is in short supply. Nor is the existing institutional architecture sufficiently equipped to deal with a complex array of economic, social, environmental, technological, and demographic challenges. Mills Soko highlights what has not worked in terms of politics, leadership, foreign policy, the economy, the African development trajectory, corporate ethics, international trade, global governance, and the thread which underlies all these issues: the importance of strong, decisive, and accountable leadership. He counters his criticism with what has worked and offers views on how some of the problems that have constrained progress in South Africa and the world can be solved. A central message emerges from his writings: leadership and governance matter, whether in the national or international context. It is a message that permeates all the chapters in the book. And it goes to the heart of what South Africa has gone through over the past two decades and where it is today.

The Skills Balancing Act in Sub-Saharan Africa Omar Arias, David K. Evans, Indhira Santos, 2019-01-31. Despite strong recent economic growth, Sub-Saharan Africa has levels of economic transformation, poverty reduction, and skill development far below those of other regions. Smart investments in developing skills aligned with the policy goals of productivity, growth, inclusion, and adaptability can help to accelerate the region's economic transformation in the 21st century. Sub-Saharan Africa's growing working-age population presents a major opportunity to increase shared prosperity. Countries in the region have invested heavily in building skills; public expenditure on education increased sevenfold over the past 30 years, and more children are in school today than ever before. Yet systems for building skills in this population have fallen short, and these shortcomings significantly impede economic prospects. In half of the countries, fewer than two in every three children complete primary school; even fewer reach and complete higher levels of education. Learning outcomes have been persistently poor, leading to substantial gaps in basic cognitive skills, literacy, and numeracy among children, young people, and adults. The literacy rate of the adult population is below 50 percent in many countries; functional literacy and numeracy rates are even lower. Systemwide change is required to achieve significant progress. Multiple agencies at the central and local levels are involved in skills development strategies, making skills everyone's problem, but no one's responsibility. Policies and reforms need to build capacity for evidence-based policies and create incentives to align the behaviors of all stakeholders with the pursuit of national skills development goals. The Skills Balancing Act in Sub-Saharan Africa: Investing in Skills for Productivity, Inclusivity, and Adaptability lays out evidence to inform the policy choices that countries will make in skill investments. Each chapter addresses a set of specific questions, drawing on original analysis and synthesis of existing studies to explore key areas How the skills appropriate to each stage of the life cycle are acquired and what market and institutional failures affect skills formation What systems are needed for individuals to access these skills including family investments private sector institutions schools and other public programs How those systems can be strengthened How the most vulnerable individuals those who fall outside the standard systems and have missed critical building blocks in skills acquisition can be supported Countries will face trade offs often stark ones that will have distributional impacts and a bearing on their development path Committed leaders reform coalitions and well coordinated policies are essential for taking on the skills balancing act in Sub Saharan Africa

The Future of Work in Africa Jieun Choi, Mark A. Dutz, Zainab Usman, 2020-06-26 The Future of Work in Africa focuses on the key themes of creating productive jobs and addressing the needs of those left behind It highlights how global trends especially the adoption of digital technologies may change the nature of work in Sub Saharan Africa by creating new opportunities and challenges It argues that contrary to global fears of worker displacement by new technologies African countries can develop an inclusive future of work with opportunities for lower skilled workers Harnessing these opportunities is however contingent on implementing policies and making productive investments in four main areas These are enabling inclusive digital technologies building human capital for a young rapidly growing and largely low skilled labor force increasing the productivity of informal workers and enterprises and extending social protection coverage to mitigate the risks associated with disruptions to labor markets This companion report to the World Bank's World Development Report 2019 concludes with important policy questions that should guide future research whose findings could lead to more inclusive growth for African nations
