

Dear Parents,

The last day of school... the closing of one door and the opening of another.

I want to thank each child for all the warmth, the memories, and the learning that we have shared this school year.

To my students, I say THANK YOU! For when I teach, I also learn. This past year we have grown together. A little bit of each of you will always be with me.

Always strive to be the BEST that you can be!

To the parents, I say THANK YOU for allowing me to be your child's teacher. It has been a wonderful and rewarding year for me.

I will love your child

advocate provides a clear step by step guide to helping your child thrive as a reader and a learner When her child went off to school Maya Smart was shocked to discover that a good education in America is a long shot in ways that few parents fully appreciate Our current approach to literacy offers too little too late and attempting to play catch up when our kids get to kindergarten can no longer be our default strategy We have to start at the top The brain architecture for reading develops rapidly during infancy and early language experiences are critical to building it That means parents work as children s first teachers begins from day one too and we need deeper knowledge to play our positions Reading for Our Lives challenges the bath book bed mantra and the idea that reading aloud to our kids is enough to ensure school readiness Instead it gives parents easy immediate and accessible ways to nurture language and literacy development from the start Through personal stories historical accounts scholarly research and practical tips this book presents the life and death urgency of literacy investigates inequity in reading achievement and illuminates a path to a true transformative education for all Literacy,

Home and School Peter Hannon University of Sheffield., 2013-10-14 Parental involvement in the teaching of reading and writing has often lagged behind practice though schools in many countries now recognise the importance of parental involvement The ideas presented in this book offer new ways of thinking about parental involvement and should interest both researchers and practitioners It relates the recent growth of involvement to broader considerations of the nature of literacy and historical exclusion of parents from the curriculum Descriptions are given of key findings from research into pre school literacy work with parents and parents hearing children read and a framework to underpin practice is offered The author gives a critique of evaluation methods in the field and suggests how parental involvement should be evaluated together with a view of research findings to date and issues needing further study The book concludes with an appraisal of what was learned from research and what needs further enquiry The Building Blocks of Preschool Success Katherine A.

Reading, Language, and Literacy Fran Lehr, Jean Osborn, 2012-10-12 The impetus for this book emerged from a conference that brought together publishers and reading researchers and educators for the purpose of examining the best available research evidence about what we know and what we have yet to learn about the teaching of reading and about how children learn to read The goal of the conference was to contribute to a sound research base upon which to develop classroom practices that will ensure that every American child will become fully literate Because the field is still so deeply divided over the best ways to translate belief into classroom practice the editors decided to highlight rather than gloss over these divisions It is hoped that the papers in this volume will promote thought and discussion that will lead to action in improving reading instruction for children now and into the new century

The Fuzzy and the Techie Scott Hartley, 2017-04-25 Artfully explains why it is time for us to get over the false division between the human and the technical Tim Brown CEO of IDEO and author of Change by Design Scott Hartley first heard the terms fuzzy and techie while studying political science at Stanford University If you majored in humanities or social sciences you were a fuzzy If you majored in computer or hard sciences you were a techie While Silicon Valley is generally considered a techie stronghold the founders of companies like Airbnb Pinterest Slack LinkedIn PayPal Stitch Fix Reddit and others are all fuzzies in other words people with backgrounds in the liberal arts In this brilliantly counterintuitive book Hartley shatters

assumptions about business and education today learning to code is not enough The soft skills curiosity communication and collaboration along with an understanding of psychology and society s gravest problems are central to why technology has value Fuzzies are the instrumental stewards of robots artificial intelligence and machine learning They offer a human touch that is of equal if not greater importance in our technology led world than what most techies can provide For anyone doubting whether a well rounded liberal arts education is practical in today s world Hartley s work will come as an inspiring revelation Finalist for the 2016 Financial Times McKinsey Bracken Bower Prize and A Financial Times Business Book of the Month Teacher-Child Interactions in Early Childhood Education and Care Classrooms Wilfried Smidt, Simone Lehrl, 2020-06-29 How children s development is shaped by Early Childhood Education and Care ECEC classrooms and especially by teacher child interactions in those settings is a major issue in research and politics which has been researched for several decades This book investigates this important topic by raising three overarching questions 1 What are good teacher child interactions and how they can be measured 2 Which individual and or contextual aspects are associated with teacher child interactions 3 What is the impact of teacher child interactions on the development of children s competencies The book ties in these fundamental questions with educational research by bringing together international studies from interdisciplinary backgrounds and presenting current research on the characteristics predictivity dependency and methodological issues of teacher child interactions in ECEC classrooms The considered studies conducted in Australia Austria Finland Germany Greece and Portugal each aim to enrich the scientific discourse and provide fruitful implications for policy and practice This book was originally published as a special issue of the Research Papers in Education journal
