Van de Ven, A guide for engaged scholarship in business studies and the social science this work provides a framework for research design and methodology It will be an invaluable tool for academics researchers and graduate students across the social sciences concerned with rigorous and relevant research in the contemporary world Engaged Scholarship Lynette Shultz, Tania Kajner, 2013-09-03 This volume brings together diverse theoretical reflections and practices of community engaged scholarship in order to stimulate critical discussion deepen theory and invite critical practice It is an international trend that higher education institutions and agencies are encouraging and promoting community engagement At the same time there is recognition of a lack of consistent definitions and understandings of what it is they are promoting As a counterweight to the dominance of pragmatic and technical discussions in the literature on engaged scholarship the chapters in this book shift the discourse to ask foundational questions that emphasize the political nature of engagement Recognizing that acts of engagement are never neutral the authors in this book explore how engaged scholarship requires decision making that is inherently grounded in values beliefs and interpretations of what is and what ought to be Alongside complex global and local social movements rising to address issues for example climate change or the global financial collapse and the uneven consequences of these globalized problems we see corresponding concerns expressed about the limited participation by excluded silenced and invisibilized people throughout the world How can engaged scholarship be mobilized and who will it serve within such contexts With contributions covering such diverse topics as a non binary approach to engagement citizenship of knowledge university contexts and corporatization stranger pedagogies and anti foundational approaches to service learning contemporary revolutionary movements in the Arab world and transforming higher education through Africanist onto epistemologies this volume is poised to open the door to a deeper understanding of engaged scholarship The Engaged Scholar Andrew J. Hoffman, 2021-03-02 Society and democracy are ever threatened by the fall of fact Rigorous analysis of facts the hard boundary between truth and opinion and fidelity to reputable sources of factual information are all in alarming decline A 2018 report published by the RAND Corporation labeled this problem truth decay and Andrew J Hoffman lays the challenge of fixing it at the door of the academy But as he points out academia is prevented from carrying this out due to its own existential crisis a crisis of relevance Scholarship rarely moves very far beyond the walls of the academy and is certainly not accessing the primarily civic spaces it needs to reach in order to mitigate truth corruption In this brief but compelling book Hoffman draws upon existing literature and personal experience to bring attention to the problem of academic insularity where it comes from and where if left to grow unchecked it will go and argues for the emergence of a more publicly and politically engaged scholar This book is a call to make that path toward public engagement more acceptable and legitimate for those who do it to enlarge the tent to be inclusive of multiple ways that one enacts the role of academic scholar in today's world technology and coordination This text contains three empirical studies The first is focused on conceptualizing and discussing the Internet in a meaningful way using both technology and coordination frameworks I unceremoniously conclude that the Internet is both a technological and a coordination phenomenon and neither of these aspects can be ignored The Internet is technological in that it concerns digital packet switched digital communication as opposed to circuit switched or purely analog communications The technological dimension of the Internet is similar in its constituency to classical telecommunications networks and has best effort mechanisms for packet delivery In the other dimension coordination the Internet is an explicit bottom up phenomenon minimally coordinated or governed by other ideals than classical telecommunications networks and systems At its core this least necessary coordination concerns technical unique identifiers necessary for inter network communication in practice today manifested as naming with the DNS protocol suite and numbering with the BGP protocol suite Both dimensions follow similar design characteristics the design of the technical Internet is similar to the design of the coordination of the Internet These design principles which are well aligned with software design principles is the cause of the Internet s layered design separation of concerns in practice and minimal view of coordination the least coordinated Internet In general terms it is fruitful to view the Internet and involved actors as an ecology rather than one organization or entity in need of governance or control The second study looks at the social resilience of the Internet That is is it possible through social means to change what the Internet is or can be viewed as I use social resilience as a counterpart to technical resilience i e resilience to technical interference In essence the bottom up and separations of concerns design of the coordination aspect of the Internet minimizes possible influence of actors intent on mission disruption I also practically show that even a take over of the central councils have little effect the constituency of the Internet since these councils are not invested with formal powers of enforcement This thesis suggests that the cost of switching from ICANN and IETF to another set of organizations is quite low due to the nature of the coordination of the Internet compared to for example switching all equipment to IPv6 capable equipment However the current political situation is a threat to the current Internet regime since an international and rule based world order is no longer on all states agendas The final empirical study focus on the practical and theoretical implications of the Internet on the case of net neutrality The primary contribution is that de facto and de jure net neutrality differ in practice and as such de facto net neutrality deserves more attention Also I suggest that any regulation either for or against net neutrality is problematic since such regulation would interfere with the inherent coordination mechanisms of the Internet As such regulation should focus on providing the necessary markets for Internet function given the coordination and design of the Internet As a net neutrality example net neutral Internet access options should exist as part of a natural service offering if wanted by customers not due to direct regulation Throughout the thesis I identify two colliding world orders both in terms of digital communication networks and terms of organizing society in general the rule based and coordinating order with its champions and the integrated or sovereign order with its champions In practical terms the Internet can be considered a want in the former the distributed perspective but not the later the integrative perspective since the Internet lacks inherent technical controls for surveillance and content control which are necessary in a world order where borders are important Regardless of if that importance stems from state oversight or intellectual property rights legislation I use these perspectives together with technology markets and bureaucracy to catch the dynamics of the Internet ecology I then compare these dynamics with other technological and societal phenomena such as railway networks postal services and financial markets And conclude that the Internet as conceptualized in this thesis can best be explained by technological values in opposite to the other examples which can best be explained by the dynamics of markets and bureaucracies without any real influence of the values of technology As such I suggest that the classical frame of markets and bureaucracy can fruitfully be expanded with technology to better explain the Internet and similar digitization phenomena This thesis puts current trends in a broader perspective based on technology and organization where the two perspectives together better can draw the full picture in a rich fashion

Academic-Practitioner Relationships Jean M. Bartunek, Jane McKenzie, 2017-07-06 While executives are keen to harness organizational knowledge and improve business performance the topic of how academics can produce rigorous and relevant theory in working relationships with practitioners is a much contested topic Many aspects of this knowledge co creation can create tensions and the ways in which research is conducted and published can affect practitioner acceptance as well as its consequent uptake and use in different contexts Expertly compiled by Jean Bartunek and Jane McKenzie with contributions from global thinkers in the field this book offers a concise and up to date review of the essential analysis and action underlying scholarly engagement with the world of business It discusses the sorts of capabilities academics need to collaborate effectively with practitioners and illustrates good practice through international case studies drawn from acknowledged centres of excellence These show how to negotiate different constituencies with different priorities values and practices to work together to produce research of rigor and relevance It will be a key reference and resource for all researchers who are engaged with practitioners and an invaluable tool for training academics to develop research with impact

Routledge Handbook of Organizational Change in Africa Franca Ovadje,Samuel Aryee,2018-08-06 Although change management and therefore effective adaptation to environmental complexity is considered a uniquely human cultural activity the extensive change management literature is largely based on the experiences of organizations in the advanced economies of the West As the economies of African countries become increasingly open African organizations will need to be agile in order to adapt and grow in a dynamic global environment Currently there is a dearth of contextualized knowledge on change management within Africa but this handbook aims to address this by bringing together a wide range of experts to explore organizational change and change management from an African context The handbook adopts a multidisciplinary historical philosophical processual and strategic perspective as well as empirical accounts of change management It addresses such issues as What are the external and internal pressures for change What is the content and process of change management What are the essentials of effective change management How can change management be theorized from an African perspective What sort of leadership can best align with change management demands in an African context How do organizations build internal change management capability It is hoped that answers to these questions contained in the handbook will provide a contextualized understanding of change management which African organizations and scholars can leverage to respond to the threats and opportunities inherent in their increasingly dynamic environment The handbook should constitute an essential reference for academics researchers and advanced students of change management development studies and African studies as well as practitioners
