Larson,2012-06-25 The way that humans organize both resource access and resource use is vital to the management of natural resources Within different contexts institutional arrangements such as the rules of common and private property rights become levers by which human behaviours can be modified and steered towards the goals of sustainable natural resource management. Featuring contributions from leading thinkers in the field, this groundbreaking volume examines institutional dynamics from the perspective of natural resource management. The book is organized into four parts. The first discusses institutional diversity and contextual change. Following this, institutional misfit is analysed with a strong focus on the long-term impacts of colonial structures in the Asia Pacific region. The book then discusses experiences with institutional dynamics in order to ease the tension of such misfits before examining future research needs. Ultimately, through careful argument and by deploying original research, the authors make the case that institutional arrangements cannot be perceived as a set of parameters that can be optimized and locked in for the most efficient functioning of a system, nor can institutions be evaluated outside the context in which they were developed. This is powerful, thought-provoking, and important reading for academics, researchers, policy makers, and professionals in resource, institutional, and environmental economics, and land use planning and policy across the full range of natural resource sectors, from forestry to agriculture. Higher Education Transitions Eva Kyndt, Vincent Donche, Keith Trigwell, Sari Lindblom-Ylänne, 2017-05-18. In the current era where lifelong learning is brought to the fore, higher education can no longer be regarded as an isolated trajectory within one's educational career, as many students face substantial challenges in crafting their professional future. More specifically, the transition from school to higher education and continuing to the labour market are often difficult hurdles for many students. Almost half of students do not succeed in the first year and often withdraw from education; students are faced with a variety of contexts and may choose to study in a different international context, and they are then confronted with structural barriers in finding a high-quality job, as evidenced by increasing levels of youth unemployment and underemployment. Higher Education Transitions aims to deepen our understanding of the transitions taking place when students enter, progress, and leave higher education to enter the labour market. Drawing on an international team of contributors, this guide includes three conceptual and fifteen empirical studies which include a range of quantitative, qualitative, cross-sectional, and longitudinal studies. Divided into three sections to reflect each important transition phase, topics include transitions from secondary to higher education, transitions within higher education, and transitions from higher education to the labour market. By considering transitions across different phases as a broad and interrelated process, this guide will be essential reading for higher education researchers, policy stakeholders, and all those interested in the transitions into higher education and the labour market. Mālik and Medina Umar F. Abd-Allah, 2013-03-28. This book studies the legal reasoning of Mālik ibn Anas d. 179 H / 795 C E in the Muwaḥḥid and Mudawwana. Although focusing on Mālik, the book presents a broad comparative study of legal reasoning in the first three centuries of Islam. It reexamines the role of considered opinion, ra'y, dissent, and legal ad-ths and challenges the paradigm that Muslim jurists ultimately concurred on a four-source Qur'ān, sunna, consensus, and analogy theory of law. Instead, Mālik and

Medina emphasizes that the four Sunn schools of law madh hib emerged during the formative period as distinctive consistent yet largely unspoken legal methodologies and persistently maintained their independence and continuity over the next millennium Australian urban land use planning Nicole Gurran,2011 Urban and regional planning is increasingly central to public policy in Australia and internationally As cities and regions adapt to profound economic societal and technological shifts new urban and environmental problems are emerging from inadequate systems of transport and infrastructure to declining housing affordability biodiversity loss and human induced climate change Australian urban land use planning provides a practical understanding of the principles processes and mechanisms for strategic and proactive urban governance Substantially updated and expanded this second edition explains and compares the legislation policy and plan making development assessment and dispute resolution processes of Australia s eight state and territorial planning jurisdictions as well as the changing role of the Commonwealth in environmental and urban policy This new edition also extends the coverage of planning practice with a new chapter on planning for climate change a more detailed treatment of planning for housing diversity and affordability and a comprehensive analysis of the New South Wales planning system and its evolution over the last 30 years Nicole Gurran is an associate professor in the Urban and Regional Planning Program at the University of Sydney Her research focuses on comparative planning approaches to housing ecological sustainability and climate change Prior to joining the University of Sydney she practised as a planner in several state government roles focusing on local environmental plan making environmental management and housing policy She is on the Executive Board of the International Urban Planning and Environment Association
