

SAFETY PRECAUTIONS

The following chart should be completed by the individual participant of the business and serving customer.

LEAKAGE CURRENT CHECK

Before returning the unit to the customer, there must also either (1) a average current check, or (2) a test to ensure resistance check. If the average current exceeds 0.5 milliamperes, or if the resistance from chassis to either side of the screen cord is less than 500 ohms, the unit is defective.

CAUTION Please heed the points listed below during servicing and inspection.

Abstract

Spots requiring particular attention when servicing, such as the cabinet, ports, drawers, etc., have features indicated by white or yellow. Be sure to read these cautions and the cautions contained in the Serviceable parts section.

(7) An AC voltage is impressed on the net, so heating internal water parts when the net is energized could cause electrocution. Take care to avoid electric shock. To fix a wire using an existing transformer and gloves when working while the net is energized, unplugging the power cord when necessary (see Fig. 10).

12) There are 100 villages (each with 1000 people) with 1000 people each. Each village has a well in the center.

(f) Caution concerning the assembly and assembly:

Though great care is taken when manufacturing parts that should make them safe, in some rare cases, burrs on the edges of parts which could cause injury to fingers are found. Always keep your fingers away from the edges of parts.

The safe parts have specific safety properties (for example, no large resistance, etc.). For replacement parts, be sure to use parts which have the same properties. In particular, for the important safety parts that are marked , use only identical and same type. Be sure to use the (replacement) parts

Ⓢ Be sure to mount parts and arrange the wires as they were originally!

For safety reasons, white parts and legs, tubes or other non-ferrous materials, and white parts are installed inside most of the surface of printed circuit boards. Care is given when with the positions of the wires, mounts and clamps are used to keep wires away from heating and high voltage parts. In the future, it is recommended that you use it as much as possible.

(Check that all screws, parts and wires removed or disconnected for servicing have been put back in their original positions, inspect that no parts around the area that has been serviced have been negatively affected, conduct an insulation check on the selected cable connections and follow-up the status of the power plug and otherwise ensure that safety is maintained.)

0000-0001-9111-1111

Using the power cord from the power cable, disconnect the antenna, plugs, etc., and turn the power switch on (using a 500-ohm resistor-capacitor tester, check that the resistance between the terminals of the power plug and the normally exposed metal parts (perforated terminal, transposition terminal, monopole terminal, wind terminal, etc.) is 5M $\Omega$  or greater). If it is less, the set may be damaged and repaired.

Many of the electric and structural parts used in the set have special safety properties. It must, however, be noted that it is difficult to distinguish by sight, and using replacement parts with higher ratings (rated power and with rated voltage) does not necessarily guarantee that safety performance will be preserved. Parts with safety properties are indicated as shown below in the wiring diagrams and parts lists in the service manual. Be sure to replace them with parts with the designed and rated numbers.
