Identifying Molecular Targets For Chemoprevention In A Rat Model:

Identifying Molecular Targets for Chemoprevention in a Rat Model, 2005 The purpose of this grant is to determine the molecular events that occur in the dorsal and ventral lobes of the rat prostate gland after 20 weeks of exposure to PhIP 2 amino 1 methyl 6 phenylimidazo 4 5 b pyridine PhIP is a potent inducer of mutations in the rat prostate where we have shown that it forms bulky DNA adducts In addition it induces high levels of oxidative damage in the target tissues The scope of this research includes 1 Generation of a rat model 2 Analysis of the rats prostate after 20 weeks of PhIP and 3 Gene chip microarray analysis To date we have completed the histopathologic analysis of PhIP induced prostate pathology we have generated an inflammatory atrophy proliferation model and we have acquired data that refutes a previous model of neoplastic progression These results have been summarized in a paper submitted to the journal Neoplasia Identifying Molecular Targets for Chemoprevention in a Rat Model. Addendum, 2007 The purpose of this grant was to determine the molecular events that occur in the dorsal and ventral lobes of the rat prostate gland after 20 weeks of exposure to PhIP 2 amino 1 methyl 6 phenylimidazo 4 5 b pyridine Our Final Report was submitted July 2007 and summarized our data from the completion of Task 1 and Task 2 published in Neoplasia Task 3 was still pending at that time This Final Addendum Report includes data from Task 3 A manuscript is being prepared and will be submitted to the DOD upon completion New Directions for Chemoprevention Research at the National Cancer Institute, 1999 Natural Products in Cancer which will shape the direction of clinical practice and research in the next 5-10 years. These observations include:

- 1 a decline in prostate related cancer mortality in the United States likely owing to a combination of factors including screening more aggressive and earlier therapy and improvements in specific therapies
- 2 a significant downward pathological stage migration so that an individual's chance of cure for a given stage grade and PSA is better now than it was early in the PSA era even without associated improvements in individual therapies
- 3 the recognition of new PSA isoforms that may refine screening strategies
- 4 several randomized phase III clinical trials demonstrating survival advantages of one form of therapy over another in selected populations: external beam radiation therapy with adjuvant hormones vs radiotherapy alone; radical prostatectomy vs observation
- 5 a focus on the biology of bone and bone metastasis and new agents that reduce skeletal related events and which may inhibit the growth of new metastases
- 6 second generation anti-PSMA antibodies with improved potential for imaging and therapy
- 7 the development and widespread adoption of nomograms that assist in clinical decision making for individual patients
