A Design of a Protective Backpack for Disaster and Risk Preparedness in Elementary Student Grades 1-3 Ma. Jobelle Ann H. Leano, 2024 The Philippines is considered as one of the most earthquake prone countries as it is geographically located on the Pacific Ring of Fire According to the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology Phivolcs the country gets around

100 to 150 earthquakes in a year With that in 2011 DepEd created the Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Office in line with the Philippine Disaster Risk Reduction Management Act of 2010 DepEd issued a manual to help schools in the Philippines create an earthquake prepared environment This includes earthquake drills setting school safe zones and teaching students to duck cover and hold methods These regulations help create an earthquake prepared environment not all schools are fully equipped to handle natural disasters Factors such as old buildings student population density and size of the school can affect the outcome during natural disasters Ronilda Co director of the Department of Education DepEd Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Services DRRMS stated that about 93 percent of around 47 000 schools nationwide experience natural hazards at least once a year Even with schools regulating earthquake drills many are still vulnerable to these hazards Furthermore on disasters The Bureau of Fire Protection reported a concerning number of fire incidents throughout the country in the year 2022 with a total of 13 029 recorded cases This statistic is alarming that raises awareness about the critical need for proactive measures to enhance fire safety and emergency preparedness Schools are expected to actively participate in the implementation of these drills following the specific guidelines outlined in DepEd Order 53 This includes the coordination of evacuation routes the use of emergency exits and the efficient assembly of students and faculty in designated safe zones The student s protection should be supplemented from earthquakes Bosai Zukin a protective headgear was created in Japan because of their frequent earthquakes It is a shock proof fabric commonly used in preschool to elementary students Currently the Philippines opts for alternative products such as from coconut husks and even doormats but on most occasions books or hands are used for protection The research method used in this study will be quantitative research The research will conduct various online surveys questionnaires The respondents will consist of only students teachers and parents This research aims to design an earthquake prepared backpack for students in the elementary level The product will serve as additional protection to the already administered earthquake regulations in schools
