AP Biology Exam

Section 1: Photosynthesis

Introduction

- Photosynthesis is the process by which plants and other organisms use light energy to produce glucose and oxygen from carbon dioxide and water.
- Chloroplasts are the organelles in plant cells where photosynthesis takes place. They contain chlorophyll, the green pigment that captures light energy.
- Light-dependent reactions are the first stage of photosynthesis, where light energy is used to split water molecules into oxygen and protons. This process occurs in the thylakoid membranes of the chloroplast.
- Calvin cycle is the second stage of photosynthesis, where carbon dioxide is fixed into glucose. This process occurs in the stroma of the chloroplast.
- ATP (Adenosine Triphosphate) is the energy currency of the cell, produced during the light-dependent reactions of photosynthesis.
- NADPH (Nicotinamide Adenine Dinucleotide Phosphate) is another energy carrier produced during the light-dependent reactions of photosynthesis.
- Photosynthesis is a process that converts light energy into chemical energy stored in glucose. It is essential for life on Earth.
- Light intensity affects the rate of photosynthesis. Higher light intensity leads to a higher rate of photosynthesis, up to a point.
- Temperature also affects the rate of photosynthesis. The rate increases with temperature up to an optimal point, after which it decreases.
- CO₂ concentration affects the rate of photosynthesis. Higher CO₂ concentration leads to a higher rate of photosynthesis.
- Water availability is crucial for photosynthesis. A lack of water can lead to a decrease in the rate of photosynthesis.
- Chlorophyll is the green pigment in plants that captures light energy. It is essential for the light-dependent reactions of photosynthesis.

Key Concepts

Photosynthesis

- The overall equation for photosynthesis is: $6\text{CO}_2 + 6\text{H}_2\text{O} \rightarrow \text{C}_6\text{H}_{12}\text{O}_6 + 6\text{O}_2$
- Photosynthesis occurs in the chloroplasts of plant cells. The chloroplast has a double membrane and internal stacks of thylakoids called grana.
- The light-dependent reactions of photosynthesis occur in the thylakoid membranes. They involve the absorption of light energy by chlorophyll and the conversion of water into oxygen and protons.
- The Calvin cycle occurs in the stroma of the chloroplast. It involves the fixation of carbon dioxide into glucose. The cycle is powered by ATP and NADPH produced during the light-dependent reactions.
- Factors that affect the rate of photosynthesis include light intensity, temperature, CO₂ concentration, and water availability.
