Cheated Not Poisoned Cheated Not Poisoned:

Cheated Not Poisoned? Michael French, Jim Phillips, 2000-09-02 This book provides the first comprehensive evaluation of Britain's food laws from the 1860s to 1930s and the first analysis of the Victorian anti adulteration legislation in 25 years. The book brings important historical perspectives to the pressing contemporary debate about food safety and the most appropriate forms of regulation by indicating that government policy historically has been shaped by competing business and consumer protectionist pressures.

Germes in the English Workplace, c.1880-1945 Laura Newman, 2021-02-15 This book looks at how the workplace was transformed through a greater awareness of the roles that germs played in English working lives from c 1880 to 1945. Cutting across a diverse array of occupational settings such as the domestic kitchen, the milking shed, the factory and the Post Office, it offers new perspectives on the history of the germ sciences. It brings to light the ways in which germ scientists sought to transform English working lives through new types of technical and educational interventions that sought to both eradicate and instrumentalise germs. It then asks how we can measure and judge the success of such interventions by tracing how workers responded to the potential applications of the germ sciences through their participation in friendly societies, trade unions, colleges and volunteer organisations. Throughout the book, close attention is paid to reconstructing vernacular traditions of working with invisible life in order to better understand both the successes and failures of the germ sciences to transform the working practices and material conditions of different workplaces. The result is a more diverse history of the people's politics and practices that went into shaping the germ sciences in late nineteenth and early twentieth century England.

Hazardous Chemicals Ernst Homburg, Elisabeth Vaupel, 2019-08-01 Although poisonous substances have been a hazard for the whole of human history, it is only with the development and large scale production of new chemical substances over the last two centuries that toxic manmade pollutants have become such a varied and widespread danger. Covering a host of both notorious and little known chemicals, the chapters in this collection investigate the emergence of specific toxic, pathogenic, carcinogenic and ecologically harmful chemicals as well as the scientific, cultural and legislative responses they have prompted. Each study situates chemical hazards in a long term and transnational framework and demonstrates the importance of considering both the natural and the social contexts in which their histories have unfolded.

Diet for a Large Planet Chris Otter, 2023-06-05 In this magisterial study, Chris Otter traces Britain's transition to a diet rich in animal proteins and refined carbohydrates like wheat and sugar, a diet that required more acreage than that of Britain itself and that if followed everywhere would soon deplete the planet's resources, as the title announces. This was truly a diet for a large planet. From the late 1700s to the end of World War II, Otter accounts for the structures, practices and ideologies generated by Britain's nutrition transition. He shows how Britain was the first nation to undergo the population explosion, urbanization and industrialization we associate with modernity and how it managed the unprecedented problem of how to feed its growing population. Its radical solution would be to outsource its food production.

leading away from a locally produced plant based diet to one reliant on global markets international trade networks and enormous agro food systems that would have planetary effects on famine war the world economy and the wider earth system Not only did this phase in Britain s history make the consumption of meat white bread sugar and butter a coveted diet linked to development luxury and power it also opened up a new phase in economic history one whose dramatic effects endure to this day whether in terms of health problems eating disorders or the seemingly endless world food crisis Food, Science, Policy and Regulation in the Twentieth Century Jim Phillips, David F. Smith, 2013-04-15 This highly topical book offers a comprehensive study of the interaction of food politics and science over the last hundred years A range of important case studies from pasteurisation in Britain to the E coli outbreak offers new material for those interested in science policy and the role of expertise in modern political culture A Rainbow Palate Carolyn Cobbold, 2024-05-31 We live in a world saturated by chemicals our food our clothes and even our bodies play host to hundreds of synthetic chemicals that did not exist before the nineteenth century By the 1900s a wave of bright coal tar dyes had begun to transform the Western world Originally intended for textiles the new dyes soon permeated daily life in unexpected ways and by the time the risks and uncertainties surrounding the synthesized chemicals began to surface they were being used in everything from clothes and home furnishings to cookware and food In A Rainbow Palate Carolyn Cobbold explores how the widespread use of new chemical substances influenced perceptions and understanding of food science and technology as well as trust in science and scientists Because the new dyes were among the earliest contested chemical additives in food the battles over their use offer striking insights and parallels into today s international struggles surrounding chemical food and trade regulation gender roles and the impact of immigration The London Restaurant incorporates the notion of gastro cosmopolitanism to highlight the existence of a diverse culture in London in this period that requires us to think not merely beyond the nation but beyond empire The restaurant also had an important role in contemporary debates about public health and the sometimes conflicting but no less often complementary prerogatives of commerce moral improvement and liberal governance The London Restaurant considers the restaurant as a business and a place of employment as well as an important site for the emergence of new forms of metropolitan experience and identity While focused on London it illustrates the complex ways in which cultural and commercial forces were intertwined in modern Britain and demonstrates the rewards of writing histories which recognize the interplay between broad global forces and highly localized spaces colonialism and advertising extended imperial power into the everyday Drawing on extensive new archives Selling Britishness explores a shared British identity constructed by marketers and advertisers during advertising's golden age

Caldwell, 2020-02-29 Moral Foods The Construction of Nutrition and Health in Modern Asia investigates how foods came to be established as moral entities how moral food regimes reveal emerging systems of knowledge and enforcement and how these developments have contributed to new Asian nutritional knowledge regimes The collection's focus on cross-cultural and transhistorical comparisons across Asia brings into view a broad spectrum of modern Asia that extends from East Asia Southeast Asia to South Asia as well as into global communities of Western knowledge practice and power outside Asia The first section Good Foods focuses on how food norms and rules have been established in modern Asia Ideas about good foods and good bodies shift at different moments in some cases privileging local foods and knowledge systems and in other cases privileging foreign foods and knowledge systems The second section Bad Foods focuses on what makes foods bad and even dangerous Bad foods are not simply unpleasant or undesirable for aesthetic or sensory reasons but they can hinder the stability and development of persons and societies Bad foods are symbolically polluting as in the case of foreign foods that threaten not only traditional foods but also the stability and strength of the nation and its people The third section Moral Foods focuses on how themes of good versus bad are embedded in projects to make modern persons subjects and states with specific attention to the ambiguities and malleability of foods and health The malleability of moral foods provides unique opportunities for understanding Asian societies dynamic position within larger global flows connections and disconnections Collectively the chapters raise intriguing questions about how foods and the bodies that consume them have been valued politically economically culturally and morally and about how those values originated and evolved Consumers in modern Asia are not simply eating to satisfy personal desires or physiological needs but they are also conscripted into national and global statemaking projects through acts of ingestion Eating then has become about fortifying both the person and the nation
