My Eyes Feel They Need to Cry Martha Aladjem Bloomfield,2013-07-01 As intimate as they are inspiring these stories of transformation drawn from the oral histories of formerly homeless adults testify to the determination of the human spirit and the healing power of sharing one s journey This gripping collection gives voice to the traditionally voiceless inviting men and women from a variety of cultural and ethnic backgrounds to share their experiences of what it was like to live on the streets in cars under bridges and of how they discovered the inner motivation to change the course of their lives in a positive direction An important contribution to understanding how destructive patterns can be broken this book examines some key questions How do those who have suffered from homelessness and the hardships that accompany it find the inspiration and courage to break the seemingly endless cycle transform their lives and become self sufficient What emotional price do they pay When do they realize that enough is enough How do they learn to trust new people when so many have disappointed them Homeless people can and do find a way off the streets as these men and women reveal through their stories paintings and poetry

Cry of the Invisible Michael A. Susko,1991-01-01 Cry of the Invisible seeks to give voice to two of the most hidden groups in our society the homeless psychiatric survivors Detailed first person accounts reveal the failure of the mental health system to ask the most basic questions Why are you homeless What happened to you before you were hospitalized Did you suffer any abuse as a child Often the hospitalized have suffered some type of trauma abuse The system s neglect of their cry of pain has rendered them invisible Indeed the routine response of the system as described in these stories is heavy drugging shock treatment Often the person s attempts at spirituality are treated as symptoms of neuro chemical imbalance Yet the stories offer hope show what has really helped people to survive The poetry graphics included show that many validate their experiences in art The book contains five sections 1 Wandering 2 Invisibility 3 Wounded Since Childhood 4 Quest 5 Advocacy The last section contains writings from professionals who question the current direction of modern psychiatry This book is edited by Michael A Susko who has a Master s in Counseling has worked in the field for several years
