

The Mobile Twin of the CNC DIALOG 11: SHOP 111

PROGRAMMING LIKE AT THE CONTROL

If you don't want to program at the machine, you need a programming station. As an external programming station, SHOP 111 is the ideal supplement to the CNC DIALOG 11. You write programs on a common commercial personal computer using the same user interface as the CNC DIALOG 11 — and with all of the same programming options. An auxiliary keyboard, identical to that of the control system, is also available upon request, so retraining is unnecessary.

SEVERAL SIMULATION OPTIONS

SHOP 111 offers the same vivid graphics for the simulation of your program as the control system — three plane views and a wireframe model which is also in color, of course. For an even better view, SHOP 111 can also display your program in the form of a three-dimensional volume model. This allows you to plot any desired cross-section through the part.

PROGRAM ARCHIVING AT THE PC

SHOP 111 features integrated data management which can be used to create a program library at the PC. You save your programs on hard disk or floppy diskettes. Naturally, SHOP 111 transfers each program directly to the control.

CNC DIALOG 11 to go: SHOP 111.

Graphics program test identical to that of the control system.
