Deconstructing And Reconstructing The Cold War:

Deconstructing and Reconstructing the Cold War, 2018 Deconstructing and Reconstructing the Cold War Alan P. Dobson, Shahin P. Malik, Graham Evans, 1999 The Cold War has been used all too often to set the parameters of what is important to explain in international affairs in the post war period The essays contained in this book provide thought provoking scholarship which helps us both to nuance our understanding of the Cold War and to realise that it should not be taken as an all embracing paradigm for the explanation of post war international relations Deconstructing and Reconstructing the Cold War SHAHIN P. MALIK, 2020-04-02 Published in 1999 These essays are not deconstructive in the postmodern sense None of the authors have that depth of scepticism about knowledge claims but they are all concerned that the terms of reference of Cold War enquiry have been inappropriately bounded The chapters by Murray and Reynolds specifically address the broad theoretical issues involved with paradigms and explanation The chapters by Dobson Marsh Malik Evans and Dix stretch out Cold War paradigms with successive case studies of Anglo American relations the USA Britain Iran and the oil majors the Gulf States and the Cold War South Africa and the Cold War and Indian neutralism All five authors challenge the efficacy of neo realist analysis and explanation and critique the way that assumptions derived from that position have been used in historical explanation The chapters by Ryall Rogers and Bideleux deal with Roman Catholicism in East Central Europe with nuclear matters and with the Soviet perspective Each work goes beyond the limits of Cold War paradigms Finally Ponting places the Cold War in the broad context of world history These essays provide thought provoking scholarship which helps us both to nuance our understanding of the Cold War and to realise that it should not be taken as an all embracing paradigm for the explanation of postwar international relations The End of the Cold War and The Third World Artemy Kalinovsky, Sergey Radchenko, 2011-04-19 This book brings together recent research on the end of the Cold War in the Third World and engages with ongoing debates about regional conflicts the role of great powers in the developing world and the role of international actors in conflict resolution Most of the recent scholarship on the end of the Cold War has focused on Europe or bilateral US Soviet relations By contrast relatively little has been written on the end of the Cold War in the Third World in Asia Africa and Latin America How did the great transformation of the world in the late 1980s affect regional conflicts and client relationships Who won and who lost in the Third World and why do so many Cold War era problems remain unresolved This book brings to light for the first time evidence from newly declassified archives in Russia the United States Eastern Europe as well as from private collections recent memoirs and interviews with key participants It goes further than anything published so far in systematically explaining both from the perspectives of the superpowers and the Third World countries what the end of bipolarity meant not only for the underdeveloped periphery so long enmeshed in ideological socio political and military conflicts sponsored by Washington Moscow or Beijing but also for the broader patterns of international relations This book will be of much interest to students of the Cold War war and conflict studies third world the United Nations conferences in Cairo and Beijing and the global campaign for debt relief While Catholic Social Doctrine offers a principled basis for Holy See diplomacy living out religious norms is more complicated than simply preaching them especially in global politics This process leads to political and ethical policy dilemmas as well as to changing patterns of conflict and cooperation with other international actors By drawing upon unpublished archival documents from five countries A Living Tradition offers a fresh and interdisciplinary view of both Catholic Social Doctrine and papal diplomacy that explores a key issue of the religious resurgence we are experiencing in the twenty first century how religious traditions function in global politics
