Designing Information Spaces The Social Navigation Approach:

Designing Information Spaces: The Social Navigation Approach Kristina Höök, David Benyon, Alan J. Munro, 2012-12-06
That's a look at an array of social proxies. The purpose was to make it clear that the concept of social proxy is quite general. Social proxies can be designed to support a wide range of on-line interactions whether they involve conversation or not. They may be synchronous or asynchronous and they may be associated with activities which are an end in themselves e.g. auctions or activities which are simply a means to an end e.g. waiting in queues. We believe that by providing a shared representation of the activity in which participants are involved, social proxies can help create shared expectations, shared experiences and can serve as a resource which participants can use to structure their individual and collective interactions. That is at least our claim. However, it is important to note that except for the first, the proxies described so far are concept pieces meaning that they haven't been implemented and deployed to real situations. Now, however, we will turn to an implemented system and look at a real example. 1.4 Experience The Babble System. In the previous section we introduced the concept of social proxies and discussed examples illustrating the wide range of situations to which social proxies can be applied. In this section we focus on our experience in designing, implementing and studying a social proxy in the context of an on-line system called Babble.

Designing Information Spaces, 2003      Designing Information Spaces: The Social Navigation Approach Kristina Höök, David Benyon, Alan J. Munro, 2011-12-09
Social navigation is an emerging field which examines how we navigate information or locate services in both real and virtual environments and how we interact with and use others to find our way in information spaces. It has led to new ways of thinking about how we design information spaces and how we address usability issues, particularly in collaborative web-based systems. This book follows on from Munro et al. Social Navigation of Information Space which was the first major work in this field. It provides a similar broad overview of the field but is much more practical in focus.      Social Navigation of Information Space Alan J. Munro, Kristina Höök, David Benyon, 2012-12-06
Social navigation is a vibrant new field which examines how we navigate information spaces in real and virtual environments, how we orient and guide ourselves and how we interact with and use others to find our way in information spaces. This approach brings a new way of thinking about how we design information spaces, emphasising our need to see others, collaborate with them and follow the trails of their activities in these spaces. Social Navigation of Information Space is the first major work in this field and includes contributions by many of the originators and key thinkers. It will be of particular interest to researchers and students in areas related to CSCW and human computer interaction. As a thoroughly multi-disciplinary topic, it will also be of interest to researchers in cognitive psychology, social psychology, philosophy, linguistics, sociology, architecture and anthropology.      Human Computer Interaction Research in Web Design and Evaluation Zaphiris, Panayiotis, Kurniawan, Sri, 2006-09-30
