Desire For Development Desire For Development:

Desire for Development Barbara Heron, 2007-12-04 In Desire for Development Whiteness Gender and the Helping Imperative Barbara Heron draws on poststructuralist notions of subjectivity critical race and space theory feminism colonial and postcolonial studies and travel writing to trace colonial continuities in the post development recollections of white Canadian women who have worked in Africa Following the narrative arc of the development worker story from the decision to go overseas through the experiences abroad the return home and final reflections the book interweaves theory with the words of the participants to bring theory to life and to generate new understandings of whiteness and development work Heron reveals how the desire for development is about the making of self in terms that are highly raced classed and gendered and she exposes the moral core of this self and its seemingly paradoxical necessity to the Other The construction of white female subjectivity is thereby revealed as contingent on notions of goodness and Othering played out against and constituted by the backdrop of the NorthSouth binary in which Canada's national narrative situates us as the good guys of the world

Desire Named Development Aditya Nigam, 2011 The predatory neo liberal capitalism that has become the norm in India over the last two decades raises many uncomfortable questions Today consumption defines what we are And with the western capitalist model reigning supreme all of us seem to have been reduced to being just consumers in the eyes of the government The effect on India's peasantry has been tremendous The recent tragic stories played out in Kalinganagar Singur and Nandigram show how many farmers suddenly find themselves up against the might of the state The theft of agricultural land from poor farmers in the name of progress has become routine Meanwhile private corporations continue to ravage the country's natural resources without any protest from the administration In Desire Named Development Aditya Nigam makes the case for dismantling some cherished beliefs and for restructuring the economy and our cities in particular ways A substantial change in government policies and individual consumption habits can still make another world possible for India's future Nigam makes a strong case for dismantling some cherished beliefs and for restructuring the economy and our cities in particular ways

Confronting Desire Ilan Kapoor, 2020-09-15 By applying psychoanalytic perspectives to key themes concepts and practices underlying the development enterprise Confronting Desire offers a new way of analyzing the problems challenges and potentialities of international development Ilan Kapoor makes a compelling case for examining development's unconscious desires and in the process inaugurates a new field of study psychoanalytic development studies Drawing from the work of Jacques Lacan and Slavoj Žižek as well as from psychoanalytic postcolonial and feminist scholarship Kapoor analyzes how development's unconscious desires speak out most often in excessive and unpredictable ways that contradict the outwardly rational declarations of its practitioners He investigates development's many irrationalities from obsessions about growth and poverty to the perverse seductions of racism and over consumption By deploying key psychoanalytic concepts enjoyment fantasy antagonism fetishism envy drive perversion and hysteria Confronting Desire critically analyzes important issues in development growth poverty inequality participation consumption corruption gender race LGBTQ politics universality and revolution Confronting Desire offers prescriptions for applying psychoanalysis to development theory and practice and demonstrates how psychoanalysis can provide fertile ground for radical politics and the transformation of international development

The Development of the Sonnet Michael R. G. Spiller, 2003-09-02 First published in 1992, Routledge is an imprint of Taylor & Francis, an informa company.

The Development Dictionary Wolfgang Sachs, 2019-09-15 The original critical guide to key concepts in development studies from some of the world's most eminent critical development scholars and practitioners. Each essay in this now classic collection examines one key development concept from the environment to needs and progress to production. Each concept is reviewed from a historical and anthropological point of view with particular bias and intellectual flaws being highlighted. Overall, the authors argue that we must bid farewell to the whole idea of Eurocentric development in order to liberate people's minds in both North and South and to mobilize for bold responses to the environmental and ethical challenges now confronting humanity. The result is an indispensable resource for scholars, practitioners, movements, and students of development which invites us to recognize the tinted glasses we put on whenever we participate in the development discourse.
