Community-based Water Law and Water Resource Management Reform in Developing Countries Barbara C. P. Koppen, Mark Giordano, John Butterworth, 2007 The lack of sufficient access to clean water is a common problem faced by communities efforts to alleviate poverty and gender inequality and improve economic growth in developing countries While reforms have been implemented to manage water resources these have taken little notice of how people use and manage their water and have had limited effect at the ground level On the other hand regulations developed within communities are livelihood oriented and provide incentives for collective action but they can also be hierarchal enforcing power and gender inequalities This book shows how bringing together the strengths of community based laws rooted in user participation and the formalized legal systems of the public sector water management regimes will be more able to reach their goals

Leading Issues in Competition, Regulation, and

Development Paul Cook, 2004-01-01 The promotion of liberalized and deregulated markets by bilateral and multilateral aid donors and by global institutions such as the WTO has led to significant attention being paid to competition and regulatory reforms in developing economies The process of reform involves the transfer and diffusion of market models derived from practice and theory in developed countries However in developing countries regulation needs to do more than simply promote competitiveness and consumer interests it also needs to ensure that the market nurtures development By rigorously examining the numerous impacts of regulation this book will help to fill a significant gap in the literature on economic and social development The book now available in paperback draws together contributions from leading experts across a range of disciplines including economics law politics and governance public management and business management The authors begin with an extensive overview of the issues of regulation and competition in developing countries and carefully illustrate the important themes and concepts involved Using a variety of country and sector case studies they move on to focus on the problems of applicability and adaptation that are experienced in the process of transferring best practice policy models from developed to developing countries The book presents a clear agenda for further empirical research and is notable for its rigorous exploration of the links between theory and practice Although there is substantial interest in competition and regulation as yet there has been relatively little investigation of these issues in developing economies This book redresses the balance and will be a valuable resource for researchers academics teachers and students interested in development economics and development studies It will also be of great relevance for practitioners and policymakers working in the fields of competition policy and regulatory reform
