"Whether in glass or textile or whatever, it is based on the straight line technique of the T square and the triangle," Frank Lloyd Wright (American, 1867-1959) once observed about his abstract design countless ornaments to still numerous architectural works. In his textile block houses, Wright masterfully elevated ornamentation to structure itself. In windows, rugs, lamps, and more, including the twelve designs showcased here, it's clear his creative richness went well beyond architecture.
